Alta. Proposes Taxing Oil Still in Ground

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta's Progressive Conservative government, unwilling to break contracts which limit royalty rates, came up with a new idea Monday for getting more money from the oil industry — a tax on crude oil reserves still in the ground.

The oil industry normally accounts for more than one-quarter of provincial revenues.

The proposed tax on "the assessed value of the right to all minerals in the province" — both on freehold and Crown land — is designed to raise $50 million to $80 million in 1973.

No rate of taxation is mentioned in the "tentative natural resources revenue plan" outlined in a position paper tabled in the legislature by Bill Dickie, minister of mines and minerals.

There will be no change in the existing oil royalty structure, established 10 years ago by the previous Social Credit administration.

WON'T HIKE RATES.

Last week, Premier Peter Lougheed said the Conservatives could not increase royalty rates for the majority of producing wells because the previous government had signed long-term leases which limit the maximum royalty on crude oil to 16 2-3 per cent of gross production. He said it might be after 1980 before the bulk of production could be freed from the maximum royalty restrictions.

Stan Milner, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of Canada, said the proposed tax would severely limit the economic growth of the province.

Milner said the association was "quite startled" over the amount of money the government proposes to raise through the tax.

If the proposal becomes a reality, he said, "a negative reaction will develop, severely limiting the economic growth of the province".

Quotas Studied

EDMONTON (CP) — The University of Alberta decided Monday to seek legal advice on its proposal to impose quotas on the number of students from Hong Kong who could be allowed to enter the engineering faculty.

University president Dr. Max Wyman said the university's solicitor will be asked whether such a move could even be "passed and enforced."

Counsel for Indians

REGINA (CP) — Four court counsellors of Indian ancestry will be present when Indians appear in court, starting next year, Attorney-General Roy Romanow told the legislature Monday.

The counsellors would be available in areas where there would be large numbers of Indians in court, Romanow said, and they would inform Indians of their legal rights, in their native language if necessary.

Buses Ordered

EDMONTON (CP) — Purchase of 35 diesel buses for a total of $1,530,924 for the Edmonton Transit System was approved Monday night by city council.

Council was informed that propane-powered buses, while more desirable in terms of less pollution, aren't practical because replacement parts aren't available.

Cyclist Found

CANMORE, Alta. (CP) — A 14-year-old boy who was reported missing Sunday when he did not return from a trail ride by motorcycle in the Bow River Forest Reserve was found Monday.

Timothy Roy Kemp of Springbank, Alta., was reported in good condition after a night out. Searchers said his motorcycle had broken down in the wilderness area west of Calgary.

Land Bill Studied

REGINA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Jack Messer said Monday the foreign ownership of land bill will be referred to a special select committee for study and may not be given third reading until some subsequent sitting of the legislature.

Messer made the disclosure during second reading of the Foreign Ownership of Land Act, designed to prevent sale of agricultural land to persons not living in Saskatchewan and includes anyone living outside the province in the category of foreigners.

Agreement Signed

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — Workers at all Safeway stores here have agreed to a new working agreement which maintains their position as the highest-paid retail workers in the city, Len Wallace said Monday.

Wallace, provincial representative of the Retail Wholesale and Department Store Union, said in an interview that the Prince Albert workers now earn wages equal to counterparts in Saskatoon and Regina. The 29-month contract gives female clerks an hourly rate of $3.20; male clerks, $3.67; meat cutters, $4.10.

ALDERMEN REJECT ATTENDANCE RECORD

EDMONTON (CP) — An alderman failed in an attempt to have city councillors' attendance at meetings recorded when the majority of city council decided Monday night it was immaterial.

Under a motion presented by Ald. Ron Hayter, aldermanic attendance records would have been compiled for all regular and special council meetings and committee meetings to which councillors are assigned. There would be a yearly report.

Only one other alderman supported the move.

Ald. Hayter said the public is entitled to know the attendance record of aldermen to help them assess their representatives.

Opponents said the motion was meaningless and unnecessary. "The contribution of an individual is more important than his attandance," said Ald. Cec Purves.

All members of council were present at the meeting.

Air Power Last Hope For Kontum

Times News Services

SAIGON — North Vietnamese infantrymen supported by artillery and tanks outflanked the remaining South Vietnamese forward defences in the central highlands today and poured down Highway 14 toward the provincial capital of Kontum, the main objective of their new drive.

Miles-long streams of refugees moved ahead of them toward Kontum, normally a town of 27,000 persons but now swollen with countless refugees hoping to fly to Pleiku, 25 miles to the south, or to Saigon, 230 miles further south. Mortar rounds hit the Kontum airfield today, wounding three children and damaging an Air Vietnam airliner and a U.S. C130 supply plane.

"Kontum is defensible," said John Paul Vann, senior U.S. adviser to the Second Military Region.

The North Vietnamese were numerically superior, but if good weather replaced the present overcast conditions American and South Vietnamese air power could save the day for the city, he added.

The Communists also renewed their offensive in the coastal highlands region of South Vietnam today, opening fire on a string of government bases along Highway 1 in Binh Dinh province 80 miles east of the Kontum drive. They surrounded one of the bases. A U.S. destroyer was firing on the Communists from offshore in the South China Sea.

Field dispatches said the Communist drive so far had overrun at least nine government support bases in the highlands region and bypassed at least five despite hundreds of tons of bombs dropped there by B-52s and strikes by fighter-bombers and helicopter gunships.

U.S. fighter-bombers today knocked out a bridge on Highway 14 five miles south of Dak To, but military sources expressed doubt one blown bridge would halt the North Vietnamese drive that a Pentagon spokesman described Monday as the opening of a long-expected general offensive in the highlands.

At An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon and another major Communist objective, the South Vietnamese were reported still holding on. The commanding general said the South Vietnamese were mounting a "counteroffensive" after U.S. planes had inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy.

Electricians Strike 10 Victoria Projects

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

Strike action was taken this morning against two Victoria electrical contracting firms as British Columbia's construction industry dispute moved towards a general shutdown.

Local 230 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers struck Camosun Electric Co. (1969) Ltd. and Mawson Gage Associates Ltd. but there was no job site picketing.

"We are not wanting to affect other trades," said local business agent Jim McAvoy.

He said 30 electricians at 10 job sites are affected, the largest of which is the new $2.5 million Victoria Press Ltd. building at Douglas and Kings.

24 GET NOTICE

McAvoy said no decision has been made yet as to which companies will be struck next but the union has served strike notice at 24 contractors on Vancouver Island.

He added that the union's policy is to try to avoid involving hospitals.

Labor Minister James Chabot met both sides in the dispute Monday in an apparently unsuccessful attempt to avert a shutdown.

"It doesn't look too good," he said later. "It looks like we are going to have a shutdown."

WAIT 'TIL MAY 1

Chabot said he urged both sides to refrain from strikes or lockouts, at least until May 1. He would take another look at the dispute if it is not settled by then.

Ed Fay, secretary of the B.C. and Yukon Building and Construction Trades Council, said contractors again asked unions to drop proposals to reduce the work week to 35 hours from 37½.

He said the number of unions seeking the reduced work week has declined because the wage offer last Friday was not large enough.

"The offer is only in the range of the 6.5 per cent guidelines and that's not good enough for people working only eight months a year," he said.

88 CENTS OFFERED

The offer is for an extra 88 cents an hour over two years, of which 80 cents would be for wages.

Two other issues are contractor proposals to reduce union hiring hall procedures and travel time benefits on the lower mainland, he said.

Construction unions originally sought raises ranging from 10 per cent in one year to 61 per cent over two years. Current rates range from $4.79 an hour for laborers to $6.80 for inside electricians.

C. J. Connaghan, president of Construction Labor Relations Association, bargaining agent for 840 contractors, was not available for comment this morning.

Contractors have voted in favor of a lockout and the legally-required notice period expires Thursday morning, after which contractors are free to take such action.

A number of unions have taken strike votes, some have served strike notice and the plumbers union in the Vancouver area is on strike against eight contractors but without picketing.

A total of 17 unions and 60,000 construction workers are involved in the dispute, encompassing almost all organized sections of the building industry in B.C.

BREAKFAST IS 'FREE'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Apparently countering critics of its forthcoming B.C. tour, the provincial cabinet has volunteered to foot the bill for breakfast all along the route.

Industry Minister Waldo Skillings made the announcement Monday. There has been criticism by some interior B.C. mayors who objected to providing free meals to the premier's entourage.

Carriage Hid Bombs

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Gunmen using a baby carriage filled with gelignite bombed Northern Ireland's main telephone exchange during the night then opened fire on British troops trying to evacuate 70 telephone operators and other persons from the building.

Snipers fired at troops when they arrived to try to clear persons from the telephone exchange in case there were more blasts. The soldiers fired back and hit one sniper.

The building was cleared but operators later returned to their switchboards. Seconds before the explosion, the operators and other workers dashed into the rear rooms.

"There was no panic although glass was flying across the switchboard room."

The bomb was contained in one of several packages delivered by a truck driver. The storekeeper who signed for them discovered a ticking alarm clock as he opened one of the parcels, the army said.

13 Years to Peace: Report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A secret study ordered by President Nixon the day after he took office revealed that it would take from 8.3 to 13.4 years to complete pacification of South Vietnam and that the Communists were capable of outlasting the allies indefinitely.

The study was conducted by Henry Kissinger, Nixon's national security affairs adviser, who compiled the results in a memo entitled "Responses to National Security Study Memorandum 1."

Excerpts of the document were published for the first time this week, but today, Sen. Mike Gravel (D—Alaska) was blocked by Senate Republican whip Robert Griffin of Michigan in an effort to insert it into the congressional record.

The justice department had no immediate comment on the case, which brought to mind the publication of the Pentagon Papers, the Johnson administration's study of the buildup of the Vietnam war. The Nixon administration sued to prevent newspapers from publishing the Pentagon Papers but was overruled by the Supreme Court.

Parts of the Kissinger study were published this week by Newsweek magazine and columnist Jack Anderson, and the Washington Post published the memo in today's editions.

The documents show Nixon received "profoundly different" judgments from government agencies on the state of the Indochina war and the actions he should take.

The joint chiefs of staff, the American military command in Vietnam, the U.S. embassy in Saigon and the commander-in-chief of Pacific forces tended to hake a "hawkish" and optimistic view. A more skeptical and pessimis-

CO-ED HIRED GUNS

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Kathleen Drewery, a 20-year-old college student, was so outraged at having her home robbed, police said, that she hired ex-gunmen to track the burglars down.

The result was three people killed and four others wounded. Miss Drewery was charged with murder.

Police said the student assigned the men to find burglars who stole $80 and a television set from her apartment.

The men, working on a description neighbors gave the girl, went to the home of Bernard Collins and held him and four others, including his wife, captive.

Soon, another man was added to the number of hostages. Subsequently, Collins, his wife and another woman were shot to death and the other four wounded.

Police said that three of the men and Miss Drewery have been charged with murder. They said they are hunting for the remaining three people she hired.

They added none of the people shot by the gunmen had been a suspect in the case.

Apollo 16 Returns With Treasures

Times News Services

HOUSTON — Apollo 16's astronauts escaped the dominance of the moon's gravity today and sped toward earth with a treasury of rocks that scientists think may include long-sought pieces of the primitive lunar crust.

John Young, Thomas Mattingly and Charles Duke showed the bright, grey-white moon receding behind them during an early morning impromptu telecast. They were reported on target for a splashdown in the Pacific Ocean Thursday afternoon.

Young and Duke walked on the moon, but today was Mattingly's day. His schedule called for an hour-long spacewalk to retrieve 6,500 feet of film from two mapping cameras in the spaceship's moon observatory.

A crucial engine burn Monday night thrust the astronauts out of lunar orbit at 6:14 p.m. PST and on course for earth, 240,000 miles away. The command ship is due to splash down in the South Pacific near Christmas Island.

Doubleheader U.S. Primary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts vote today in doubleheader presidential primary elections, with senators Hubert Humphrey and George McGovern forecasting victories. Senator Edmund Muskie is the underdog in both elections.

The dual primaries began an intensive month of Democratic balloting with Muskie of Maine, battling to remain a contender for the White Jouse nomination.

Brandt Faces Crucial Vote

BONN (Reuter) — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt is facing a no-confidence vote in 48 hours which could end his 2½ years in power, but he is confident he can survive.

Equally confident of toppling him are the opposition Christian Democrats. They drew up this first no-confidence vote against a Bonn chancellor in German postwar history Monday night only a few hours after their sweeping victory in weekend elections in the key state of Baden-Wuerttemberg.

Under the West German constitution 48 hours must elapse before the crucial vote is taken — in this instance on Thursday. Should it succeed in toppling Brandt's liberal coalition, which has ruled since October, 1969, it will also frustrate his two pacts of reconciliation with the Soviet Union and Poland.

The pacts, which are due to come before the Bundestag (lower house) for ratification next week, have met with bitter opposition in parliament on the grounds that they effectively seal the partition of Germany.

The 59-year-old chancellor, who was warded the Nobel Peace Prize just four months ago for his efforts at reconciliation with Eastern Europe, said Monday night on television he awaited the vote "with composure."

Greenpeace Skipper Smuggler

AUKLAND, New Zealand (UPI) — Vancouver yachtsman David McTaggart was released from jail today in time to sail his 38-foot ketch Vega, renamed Greenpeace III, for Mururoa atoll to protest against the planned French nuclear tests there.

McTaggart was convicted in an Aukland court this week of smuggling 127 watches worth $7,200 from Fiji into New Zealand in his yacht.

His fine of $960 was paid and he was released from custody in time to attend a news conference here today when Ben Metcalfe, chairman of the Canadian-based International Greenpeace Foundation, handed over the standards from two previous Greenpeace boats.

Soviet Assisted

CAIRO (UPI) — President Anwar Sadat has acknowledged for the first time that Egypt has granted facilities to the Soviet fleet in the Mediterranean and in a speech released today disclosed he is receiving arms from the West.

Hire PM? Not Even as Baggage Man!

PWA general manager W. R. Harris made that clear today.

"No, we wouldn't hire him, unless he got a haircut," Harris told the Times.

He was commenting on B.C. Civil Liberties Association plans to stage a satirical "baggage handling ceremony" at noon Thursday in front of the Vancouver PWA office.

The idea is to spoof PWA regulations that require its male employees to keep their hair above the back of the neck and their sideburns above the ear lobe.

Informed this ceremony was going to happen, Harris laughed and said: "I think that it's beautiful."

The PWA has become a target of the association because of a complaint from a baggage handler last year.

Harris explained that he was a student hired for the summer and when he was told to cut his hair if he wanted to keep the job, he complied.

The association said PWA forbids long hair because it may instil "a sense of apprehension" in passengers, and quoted letters from Harris saying so.

Harris said today the rule applies to all male employees, from pilots down, who are "in the public eye." He added that it was strictly a matter of neatness.

Asked whether he thought all men with long hair were not neat, he replied: "Not necessarily. I've seen some that were neat and some that were terrible."

The association pamphlet adds that, besides having long hair, Trudeau wouldn't qualify for PWA employ because "he's been known to drink beer in public" and "he refuses to wear red bloomers."

In its protest Thursday against such discrimination, the association invites "honest men who are proud of the length of their sideburns or the hair on their chin or over their collar" to show up and bring their own baggage.

$680,000 Contract for Bamfield Research Lab

A consortium of five western universities has awarded a $680,000 contract to convert the abandoned cable station at Bamfield into a marine biology research and teaching laboratory.

The work will be done by Argus Installations Ltd. of Vancouver and will include construction of an elaborate seawater system serving the laboratory's research aquariums. If the system, likely to cost about $225,000, were to fail it could mean the loss of experiments under way for months or years.

Dr. Glen Geen, biologist at Simon Fraser University and a member of the management counsel for the project, said today the contract also covers installation of electrical, heating and other plumbing systems as well as sewage treatment and generally will bring the building to readiness for courses this summer.

Two courses will start simultaneously July 3 and run for six weeks. About 20 students will take part, some of them college or high school teachers, Geen said.

The Bamfield centre is the first of its kind on the Canadian west coast and will be operated by the Western Canadian Universities Marine Biological Society, formed by the universities of Victoria, British Columbia, Simon Fraser, Alberta and Calgary.

A year ago it received a $500,000 federal grant from the National Research Council to assist in its development.

In 1970 the society bought the cable station and 190 acres of land at Bamfield, including almost two miles of shoreline. Bamfield is a remote fishing village 80 miles northwest of Victoria. On the south shore at the entrance to Barkley Sound, it is a 135-mile journey by road from Victoria, half of it over restricted logging roads.

Geen was asked today if oil pollution posed a major threat to functioning of the Bamfield station. There is increasing evidence tankers will be transporting Alaskan oil off Vancouver Island's west coast to a refinery at Cherry Point in Washington State.

A spill in the immediate vicinity of Barkley Sound could be "pretty devastating," he said. But any tanker traffic will likely keep well offshore.

WHOLE CORN WITH PAJAMAS

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Seldom has the McPherson Playhouse stage seen such energetic shovelling of whole corn, such sustained behind-the-scenes muscle-power as that hustling Yankee musical, The Pajama Game, provided on opening night, Monday.

If the show over all had been as good as its last few minutes, this Victoria Operatic Society production would be, critically speaking, one of the top achievements in local history.

Of the production numbers, Seven-and-a-Half Cents, which comes just ahead of the finale, has one big virtue that most of the others lack—discipline.

It is also more smartly conceived as well as being crisply executed, refreshing and uncluttered. Full credit to choreographer June Elsdon for this one.

For the more successful aspects of the show, the orchestra also, under Howard Denike's direction, must be given a lion's share of credit for sustaining the brightness and energy of the production.

CUES DROPPED

In his stage direction Harry Elsdon has kept everybody moving at speed — except for a number of dropped cues.

He has also produced possibly the most gimmicked-up show in VOS history.

It has everything — a moose head with blinking red eyes, a monster heating plant that emits steam on cue, machinery with colored rotating flywheels.

And as for comic cliches — would you believe pie in the face, and even an undress routine involving trousers?

NATURAL FLAIR

Among the cast Robert Price and Barry Grimshaw are definitely the headliners. Price has a great natural flair for musical comedy style and can make even the corniest routine amusing.

Grimshaw has the best voice in the cast and while this is not a singer's musical it is nice to hear some good vocal sound now and then. He also presents a highly amusing characterization.

SOME SUCCESS

Marilyn McKenzie, who replaced vocally ailing Sue Mundy two weeks ago, sings the part of the strong-minded Union grievance committee head, Babe, with some success.

As the sexy Gladys, Mary Bissenden undulates provocatively, but Dale Briggs as factory superintendent-hero Sid never really found the level of his role.

The action on the whole, is not the best we have seen on the VOS stage and even the general infectious gaiety and animation could not prevent some scenes from being uncomfortably amateurish.

Socreds Plan Local Assault

By PAUL JACKSON
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The federal Socreds are planning an all-out assault on the Victoria area in preparation for the next federal election.

Henry Landry, special assistant to Social Credit house leader Andre-Gilles Fortin and a former president of the B.C. Young Socreds, says the campaign to win the federal seats of Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich began late last week with a mail-out of some 22,000 questionaires to local residents.

It will gather steam when the federal leader of the Social Credit Party Real Caouette speaks at a luncheon meeting at the Empress Hotel in Victoria this Saturday.

And it will really get under way when 28-year-old Landry, a former chef at the Empress Hotel, makes his bid to win the Socred nomination for the Victoria seat, now held by Liberal David Groos.

Landry says he understands at least one person has expressed interest in seeking the Esquimalt-Saanich nomination — the seat is now held by Liberal David Anderson.

If Landry does contest the Victoria nomination, he expects to face at least one other Socred hopeful.

Dates for nominating conventions for both Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich ridings have yet to be announced.

. . . VIET REPORT

tic slant was taken by the civilian Office of the Secretary of Defence, the Central Intelligence Agency and the state department.

Advisers differed sharply about the validity of the "domino" theory, the effectiveness of B52 strikes, the length of time it would take to "pacify" the Vietnamese countryside, and the prospects for shutting off military aid to North Vietnam from China and the Soviet Union.

The Kissinger memorandum said, however, that there was "general agreement" that the South Vietnamese armed forces "alone cannot now, or in the foreseeable future, stand up to the current (1969) North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces." It also said it was uncertain the South Vietnamese government and other non-Communist groups "will be able to survive a peaceful competition with the NLF (Viet Cong) for political power in South Vietnam."

GOV'T RADIO SPOTS READY FOR AIR

The first batch of Ask Your Government Advertisements is recorded and on its way to radio stations across British Columbia, a government spokesman said today.

Ray Orchard, an official in the provincial secretary's department, confirmed that five taped radio spots are completed and have been sent to radio station CKNW where they will be copied and distributed, eventually to 55 stations.

The radio advertisements, in which provincial cabinet ministers will answer questions supposedly put by citizens at large, were planned by radio stations CKNW and CFAX.

Orchard said the tapes were sent Monday to CKNW and should be ready for distribution by Friday.

The advertisements have come under criticism because the radio time is being paid for with tax revenue.

Housing Subsidies Discussed

OTTAWA (CP) — A confidental government memorandum proposing federal subsidies to help low-income families buy adequate housing is just one of several discussion papers being circulated among provincial governments, Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford said today.

In a one-sentence statement, Mr. Basford said the memorandum is "one of a number of discussion papers circulated for purposes of consultation and discussion toward the development of legislative policy."

The memorandum was summarized in the Toronto Globe and Mail. Mr. Basford had no comment on the report of the memorandum's contents.

The Globe and Mail said the memorandum was sent by Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. April 11 to provincial governments. The memorandum also proposed:

—Federal rehabilitation grants and loans of up to $2,000 a housing unit if federal funds are matched by the provinces.

—Amendments to the National Housing Act to provide loans to house buyers for up to 40 years at annual interest rates of seven per cent.

—Increased federal financing of senior citizens' housing projects sponsored by non-profit organizations.

—Replacement of the old urban renewal program with neighborhood planning which would stress rehabilitation of existing houses.

A spokesman for Mr. Basford declined to predict when the consultations with the provinces might produce specific legislative proposals.

"It depends, I guess, on how agreeable the provinces are."

the weather

A westerly flow of moist air from the Pacific will keep temperatures a little on the cool side but southerly winds developing ahead of a new and growing storm in the Pacific should give a bit more moderation to southern B.C. Wednesday. The storm, however, will bring another wave of rain to the coast reaching the northern part Wednesday morning and spreading southward during the day to the south coast.

Oak Bay Buoy Not Connected With Tankers

Department of transport district manager Larry Slaght denied a Colonist story today that his department would place a buoy near Discovery Island as part of a super-tanker route planned by the Americans.

It was announced Sunday that a 90-foot channel was being surveyed through Rosario Strait and the Strait of Juan de Fuca by the Seattle-based Davidson.

The channel is being probed in preparation for the super-tankers expected to transport oil from Alaska's North Slope to an oil refinery at Cherry Point, Wash.

Slaght said today that a buoy will be placed on Middle Bank, about four miles east of Discovery Island, but there is "absolutely no connotation that there had been high-level discussions on the route between Canada and the United States."

He said agreement to place the buoy there was made "at least a couple of years ago, long before the tanker route was being discussed."

"Because of the large vessels that would be using Roberts Bank and Puget Sound facilities we agreed with our American counterparts that a channel for deeper draft ships was necessary.

"We found that the only additional aid needed in Haro Strait was at Middle Bank."

Most of Middle Bank is in American waters but to mark the shoal, a buoy was needed on the Canadian side.

Slaght said that although the water above the shoal was 70 feet deep it fell off sharply to 200 feet.

Slaght said that no date has been set for installing the buoy.

FRENCH-SPEAKING TIDE ON INCREASE IN B.C.

OTTAWA (CP) — British Columbia is the only province with a rising proportion of French-speaking residents, Statistics Canada reported Monday.

Returns from last June's census show the proportion of the population listing French as their mother tongue declined to 26.9 per cent from 28.1 per cent 10 years earlier.

The B.C. increase was miniscule — up to 1.7 per cent of the provicial population from 1.6 per cent in 1961 — as was the provincial population from the decline in Quebec where 80.7 per cent are primarily French speaking. In 1961, 81.2 per cent had French as a mother tongue.

The national predominace of English increased to 60.2 per cent of the population from 58.5 per cent in 1961.

All other mother tongues accounted for 13 per cent of the population, down from 13.5 per cent in 1961.

Newfoundland — English 98.5, French 0.7, other 0.8

Quebec — English 13.1, French 80.7, other 6.2.

Ontario — English 77.5, French 6.3, other 16.2.

Manitoba — English 67.1, French 6.1, other 26.8.

Saskatchewan — English 74.1, French 3.4, other 22.5.

Alberta — English 77.6, French 2.9, other 19.5.

B.C. — English 82.7, French 1.7, other 15.6.

Yukon — English 83.5, French 2.4, other 14.1.

N.W.T. — English 46.9, French 3.3, other 49.8.

Saanich Bond Price Not Par

In a story referring to the fourth in a series of municipal debenture issues by Saanich the Times mistakenly reported prices were at par.

The story should have referred to prices ranging from $97.95 per $100 par value to $99.75, to provide yields ranging between 7.5 and 8.5 per cent at maturity.

MDs 'Poor Image' Blamed on MDs

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS (CP) — NDP leader Dave Barrett told a group of doctors Monday that the medical profession has no one to blame but itself for any bad public image.

Barrett told the medical conference the Social Credit government has been able to take advantage of doctors' lack of involvement in social issues.

He charged the government has "cornered" doctors on the issue of salaries. Because the medical profession had allowed itself to be used politically, doctors had the image of caring more about higher fees than about questions of public welfare.

The NDP leader, speaking to the B.C. chapter of the College of Family Physicians of Canada and to family doctors with the B.C. Medical Association, urged doctors to get involved in issues such as housing, nutrition and social planning.

First Talks Under Way

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (Reuter) — An Indian delegation arrived in Islamabad today for the first talks between Pakistan and India since the two-week war last December.

The delegation, headed by Drgua Prasas Dhar, was met by Pakistan's chief negotiator, Aziz Ahmed, at Islamabad airport.

Hong Kong Vet Dies

The oldest member of the Hong Kong Veterans of Canada died Monday in Victoria, less than six months after the HK vets lost their youngest member.

George Henderson, in his 85th year, 2570 Lansdowne, had been a sergeant-major of engineers in the Hong Kong Volunteer Defence Corps, and later a prisoner of war.

On retiring to Victoria in 1947, Henderson joined the HK Vets of Canada. He was also a member of the Far East Prisoners of War Organization, a U.K-based group.

A private family funeral service will be conducted at McCall's chapel.

Last Oct. 29 the HK vets lost 46-year-old Earl Vermette, at his home in Vancouver who, up to then, had been the youngest member of the organization.

SOMETHING FISHY

CHERBOURG, France (UPI) — Maritime authorities said today fishermen have found microphones in their nets in the same area where the French atomic submarine La Terrible is scheduled to make a test run in May. The maritime officials said a Soviet fishing fleet appeared two months ago in this area off the Normandy coast. Fishermen at the time questioned its presence because the season was too late for herring and too soon for mackerel.

Chevy Nova.
The reasonable alternative for small car buyers.

Here's why.

Yet people are starting to look for a car with the economy/handling advantages of the small car plus the stability/space advantages of the larger car.

That's what Chevy Nova is all about.

Not-too-big.

Nova is about a couple of feet longer than your average small car. Which isn't much. So you'll find Nova quite simple to wheel around and easy to park.

Nova doesn't cost that much to buy or to run. Calling it reasonable is being modest.

Not-too-small.

On the other hand, we did build Nova to offer relief from small-car cramps. Those couple of extra feet mean there's room for six adults (or two adults and a pack of children), and a trunk big enough to take all their stuff.

Out on the road, Nova sits tight on corners and holds steady in crosswinds. And on long highway runs or long hills, Nova has no problem keeping up with the big ones.

Very dependable.

Nova has an enviable reputation for dependability. And that was convincingly confirmed by a survey carried out last year among independent garage owners/managers and servicemen. These car professionals voted our Chevy Nova, "The car with the least mechanical problems."

Compare the value.

Good value is made up of many things. Proven dependability is one of them. See how it pays off at trade-in time.

But Nova's value is much more.

You have the opportunity to take the basic car (quite something as is) and add other extra-cost features to suit your own personal taste. You can get power steering if you want it. And power brakes, too. Or a sun roof on the coupe.

If you like the idea of a small car but don't like the limitations, Chevy Nova could be for you.

To be sure, see your Chevrolet dealer.

GM

Buckling seat and shoulder belts is an idea you can live with.

A Better Chance to Benefit

The newly granted ability of the Capital Regional District Board to borrow money for the purchase of parklands opens a welcome vista of possible acquisitions for this community. Under the previous legislation, the Region could levy one-half mill annually for such purchases, and this produced the excellent program of yearly purchases of suitable property which has been carried out over the past seven years.

With its new borrowing power, the Region will be able to speed up its acquisition program, and have a chance to obtain choice properties which might otherwise be committed to other purposes before the Region could get around to them. Borrowing will also permit the purchase of large — and hence expensive — sites which will provide very welcome additions to the chain of large and small parks which now dot the Capital Region. The program is one of the most valuable of the Regional Board's functions, for it ensures that green areas — breathing spaces — will be preserved not only for today's residents but also for the future when their value will be beyond price.

Already the hilltop, seafront and other sites which have been purchased are being used by increasing numbers of people for healthful recreation. When users have increased by thousands, the wisdom of having sufficient parklands available will become obvious, for there is little doubt that many parks will be overused — and to that extent damaged — in the future if they are subjected to an increasing traffic of strollers, swimmers, hikers and fresh-air enthusiasts of all kinds.

To mention the parks acquisition program is to invite everyone to name a favorite potential park site and ask why it isn't purchased. Obviously, it will not be possible to adopt all the proposals. Suggestions for adding to the splendid East Sooke property should receive much support. Any visitor to this fine natural woodland, with its little beaches, coves, hills and beautiful vistas, will be in favor of adding to it.

The matter of the Thetis Lake parkland and the 245 acres of private land still remaining in its watershed should also be kept in the Regional Board's thinking. And the city should not fumble around too long. The sale price of the existing — although still undedicated — parkland should be nominal. But the 245 acres on its western border drain into the lakes, and it is necessary to add this area to the park in order to safeguard the future of what has been described as one of the continent's finest natural botanical sanctuaries.

A good precedent exists for action by the city and Region. The city sold the Beaver-Elk parkland — which, like Thetis, was only a watershed property at the time — for a nominal sum to the Region, and the Region later made plans to purchase adjacent private property to round out and protect the park. The same should be done for Thetis, and the new borrowing power of the Capital Region makes this a much more likely development. There could not be a better investment in public health.

The Causes Are Also Effects

The statement of a United States psychologist, based on government statistics, that mental disorders of one kind or another afflict almost every family in that country, including perhaps 60 million borderline schizophrenics and others with allied handicaps, is not hard to believe. It is more difficult to decide whether the quoted facts are the cause of today's incredible turmoil in American private and public life, or vice versa.

Perhaps no era in U.S. history has offered the degree or variety of unrest which afflicts our neighbor today — with a considerable amount of it also manifest in Canada. There is escalating violence by individuals against persons and property; a growing callousness among non-participants in regard to violence; an increasing resort to mind-affecting drugs along with a countrywide use of pills to tranquillize "nerves," induce sleep or wakefulness, or merely ease real or imaginary bodily discomforts; a mounting toll of lives and health due to alcoholism; a loss of stability and purpose among thousands of persons; a general floundering of moral principle. Some of these maladies are common to many countries in the world today, but the energetic approach of the United States to all the phenomena of this century has intensified such developments there.

Individual problems are creating, or are created by, the wider social phenomena which may be seen. The so-called drug culture is paralleled by what might be called the crime culture, in which a secondary underworld "government" apparently rules the lives of thousands of subjects and exacts an annual toll on society that adds millions of dollars to the cost of living in the United States. The vast rejection of established moral precepts without introducing acceptable alternatives, the bitterness of the racial confrontation, the frantic pitch of political, economic and social life, the inescapable concern about population and pollution — all these form an environment which can only foster mental turmoil and disability which in turn add to the problem.

There have been Jeremiahs in all eras, of course, and today has its quota. But too many of today's problems are self-perpetuating and cumulative, demanding drastic revisions not only of man's physical environment but also of man's mental and emotional health. And if that is the key, it is also the lock.

No-Information Canada?

OTTAWA — When the Government invested in Information Canada it had before it an attractive prospectus issued by a task force in the late summer of 1969. The new organization was to be assigned "the function of public advocate in matters of access to federal information and timeliness of replies to citizen's queries."

How busy with advocacy Info has been, we can only surmise. From the questions which appear each Monday in Routine Proceedings it appears, however, that members of Parliament have been experiencing some difficulty in extracting information from Information Canada.

Some of the questions exciting the curiosity of members and their constituents are, admittedly, difficult. They may require many hours of research by the departments concerned. Concepts of "timeliness" may also vary. Wellington, waiting for Blucher, could scarcely have been expected to display the patience of governments waiting to clean up the Great Lakes.

Moss-Grown Questions

But the questions about Info, unanswered on Monday, would not appear to present insuperable difficulties. Three of them, in the name of Mr. Marshall, a Newfoundland member, have been on the order paper for two months. They do not require any advocacy and it is obvious that they have not moved Info to any sense of urgency.

Mr. Marshall asked on February 18: "How many inquiries have been received by Information Canada offices complaining about delays in receiving UIC benefits?" Analysis of inquiries used to be an Info specialty. What, then, is the problem?

A second question asked: "What part has Information Canada played in directing information to Canadians who suffered delays in receiving UIC benefits?" Since Info presumably knows what it has done, or not done, why the reticence?

"What were the operating costs of Information Canada as of January 31, 1972?" This is not a very obscure question. Why does it require two months, or more, for Info to check with its own accounting department?

On March 1 — rather more than six weeks ago — Barry Mather, Surrey-White Rock, asked a series of questions which may have required a bit of advocacy. They are concerned, however, with matters of special interest to Info.

Answers to the first two ought surely to have been at Info's finger tips, or at least no farther away than the closest adding machine. "What was the number of staff, including clerical staff, of the information sections of the departments and agencies of the federal Government prior to the formation of Information Canada" and "What was the total of salaries of these staffs at that time?"

BARRY MATHER

As Mr. Trudeau worried publicly about this during the 1968 election, even before the task force was created, one must assume that Info looked into the matter as soon as it was established.

Mr. Mather then asked the same questions as of January 1 1971. What is the difficulty about data of this age? Have the departments and agencies been reluctant to divulge such information to Info? If so, ought we not hear about it from our public advocate? Or has a big government become such a jungle that alert Info officers disappear into it like Stanley in his search for Dr. Livingstone?

Finally Mr. Mather placed questions about the number of staff, including clerical staff, of Information Canada in February 1971 and February 1972, with the salary totals in each case. No requirement for a Stanley here. But no information either.

What makes the matter even more puzzling is the fact that Information Canada was given an inkling earlier that Parliament is interested in such matters. Very, similar, although slightly less detailed questions, were asked by Mr. Coates, of Nova Scotia, on February 18.

Grounds for Complaint

When the public advocate encounters such problems, it is small wonder that private members sometimes complain of their lot.

Thus Mr. Hellyer, on March 6, inquired how many persons were drawing unemployment insurance benefits on January 31, 1972. After nearly a month and a half of meditation, the Government was able to reply, last week, that it does not know. In a mood of helplessness it did, however, ascertain that 826,996 claimants were registered for unemployment benefits in January.

John Burton, of Regina, was curious at the end of February about salaries paid to the Chief Commissioner and other Commissioners of the Wheat Board. His curiosity remains unsatisfied although the question does not appear a particularly baffling one.

Some members are more fortunate. As Hansard shows, a few questions asked as recently as March 27 have been answered. Why some departments are more bold and venturesome than others is not clear, but more appears to be involved than the inherent difficulty of the questions.

But this has always been the case. What is puzzling is the apparent inability of the public advocate to respond with the alacrity, more or less, of the departments which it is supposed to prod. Info, we were given to understand, is keen to communicate, but it is breaking no records even in posting the members of its own affairs and matters in which, according to the same understanding, it is not deeply concerned.

DAVID HUMPHREYS

With Tooth and Nail

LONDON — Nearly two years ago Britain's Conservatives rode to office on a wave of feeling that "something must be done" about selfish, freewheeling use of union power in their own interests. Phrases like "holding the nation to ransom" were commonplace.

The same old phrases still ring out in Parliament and letters to the editors, although the new government delivered with almost indecent haste on its promise to do something and the resulting Industrial Relations Act came fully into law in March.

As promised, the unions fought the new law tooth and nail, one defying it to the point of contempt of court last month. Those who expected the change in government to end all that nonsense of chaos in one industry after another were disappointed. As the new law was dragged through Parliament (and through many a night) trouble arose in the docks, motor industry, post office, mines and now the railways.

Similar Ritual

The ritual was usually similar. First, plenty of warning in well-publicized inflated union wages claims. The gradual breakdown of negotiations and conciliation attempts. Frantic 11th-hour consultations among government, unions and the central Trades Union Congress. Finally, the work-to-rule or outright strike with massive inconvenience to the general public. The most powerful unions usually got their way.

The inconvenience partially explains continuing opposition to the unions. On the day the government applied for a cooling-off period under new legislation an opinion poll published in The Times showed solid support for its action. Sixty-two per cent of those questioned favored the cooling-off action, with 28 per cent opposed and 10 per cent undecided.

The biggest union, the two million-member Transport and General Workers, is waiting for the bailiffs to move in and seize assets for nonpayment of a $12,500 fine imposed by the new industrial court in a jurisdictional dispute. The union refused even to attend the court exercising the law of the land with high court status. It is a good bet that most Britons still respect the law of the land, believe it should be obeyed, and frown on persistent law-breakers whether they be union leaders or thieves.

If, following the government's emergency action for the cooling-off application, defiance continues, public objections compounded by daily travelling problems might be expected to bring the unions into further disrepute. But that would not get the government off the sharp hook of its own construction. This is the unsolved problem of industrial relations.

EDWARD HEATH

If union defiance continues, a serious constitutional crisis would be difficult to avoid. The Heath government might win an election fought solely on that issue, with the Labor opposition divided. But the government must rival the unions in unpopularity.

So much for conjecture. The unions remain the central unsolved problem in British economic life. They broke the Labor government after it tried to bring them under the law. They threaten to disrupt the Conservative government's plan to expand the economy as the country joins the European Common Market.

Even now a Labor party committee is trying to work out in time for the next election an economic strategy based on union co-operation. Writing in The Observer, George Brown, former deputy Labor leader, says there is a basic conflict to be resolved between parliamentary Laborites and present union strongmen bent on destroying the system. "If the democratic process, (meaning not just Parliament, but the law which imposes the will of Parliament) is going to prevent them getting their way, they want to sweep it aside."

Little Unemployment

The Conservative government is left to find a way out of the present impasse. During the former Conservative government of Harold Macmillan in the early 1960s the unions under left-wing militancy were kept happy. There was a working consensus that included unions. Inflation burned steadily along during those years but there was little or no unemployment.

The new government got off on the wrong foot, campaigning for union reform. Although Prime Minister Edward Heath is no "Supermac" in manner, attempts have been made to reach a working relationship based on reason and common sense.

In addition to mounting inflation, the Heath government has suffered under record postwar unemployment, sharpened by a succession of business failures. Since last July, British industry has voluntarily held price increases to the rate of five per cent, with partial success. The unions have asked for much more, successfully in most cases, with the notable exception of postal workers.

When Harold Macmillan's son Maurice took over resently as employment secretary, it was hoped that "son of Supermac" might bring some of the old family magic to bear. Alas, he and the unions were soon on a name-calling basis.

It has become clear under both Labor and Tory governments that something more than a law or a personality is needed. It is some form of national economic strategy with union co-operation.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Our Money

Mr. Bennett was elected by the people of British Columbia by a democratic procedure to carry out the wishes of that people. Does he lead a government of the people, for the people?

Having listened to Mr. Derril Warren last week in Oak Bay — whose main desire is to listen to the people and to carry out their wishes, to govern with integrity, and to stick to decent principles — it seems that Mr. Bennett has turned a deaf ear and looked the other way when faced with these simple ideals.

I am amazed at his temerity in spending our money on such projects as changing the name and appearance of the P.G.E. Railway at the cost of $1,000,000. It may provide a chosen few professed Socreds with work for a short time, but what about the unemployed who should have permanent long-term jobs? What about the young graduates and technologists who cannot get work? What about the old-age pensioners who can't survive on their starvation-line pensions?

Why is there a surplus budget, of which he not-so-modestly boasts, out of which $50 is to be grandly bestowed upon the tenants of rented dwellings? And let's not omit the money, our money, spent on advertising this government.

Surely we need a more imaginative, honest, sincere, approach to the problems of ecology, inflation, unemployment, labor relations, and to the disillusionment of most voters not in the government employ, which this government does nothing to alleviate. — Patricia McKenzie, 2379 McNeill Ave.

When Hiring

I read with interest your article in the April 15 edition on the B.C. Human Rights Act, and I hope that it enlightened many people who need to know more about the existence of such an act and what it contains.

One statement you made however, whilst basically true, could cause some confusion, and that was the last paragraph where you said that it was proper to ask a person if he or she had ever been convicted of a crime, and if so to give details, etc. Whilst this may be the case under provincial regulations, any employer that comes under federal jurisdiction cannot ask this question any more, and even the federal government no longer asks this question of prospective employees.

I suspect that very few people know that there are in fact two human rights acts and two labor acts operating not only in this province, but all across Canada, and that is the local provincial legislation in each respective province, and the federal act, which covers not only employees of the federal government but all companies that come under federal jurisdiction, such as railroads, stevedores, air lines, etc, and in many cases these acts conflict. Even here in B.C. the provincial minimum wage is $1.50 per hour, whereas for those under federal jurisdiction it is $1.75.

Is it too much to hope, Mr. Editor, that one day we shall have the happy experience of having one set of laws and regulations, which apply equally to every Canadian no matter where he lives or under what jurisdiction he comes? It seems to me that this is even more important for Canadian unity than bilingualism. — Harold Morton, P.O. Box 1701.

Too many onlookers creating stress in animal behavior

Prosperity threatens animal sanctuaries

By JIM HOAGLAND
The Washington Post

SERENGETI, Tanzania — The vast green plains held a timeless silence in mid-morning, ruffled only by the whispers of a wind rising far away and the low hum of a few tsetse flies. White clouds shaped like anvils billowed across a pristine blue sky.

A solitary leopard perched on a low limb on the shady side of a tree and waited placidly for prey. Africa's most beautiful grassland, the Serengeti plains in northern Tanzania, seemed for a moment to have eluded the great human incursions that have devastated other such areas across the world.

But the wheels of a minibus cut through the long grass, yellow-green in the current rainy season. The bus moved to a better camera angle in front of the leopard. The track of crushed grass extended behind the vehicle in a line miles long.

It will take one month for the grass to recover. If another vehicle uses the same track, as is highly likely, the scar will remain for three months. A third time, and the track is probably permanent.

The arrival of tourists in even remote parts of the 5,600-square-mile plain area, and the accompanying destruction of grassland, is an increasingly frequent occurrence today. It underscores the fact that Serengeti and the other natural wildlife sanctuaries in East Africa have been swept by man-made change more in the past two decades than in unnumbered centuries past.

Concerned conservationists fear that unless present trends are altered, the next five to ten years could bring even more devastating changes to the sanctuaries, considered by many experts and laymen to be the most magnificent still in existence.

The dangers that confront the giant ecological systems that are the habitat of millions of wild animals in this region cover a broad spectrum, but two motivating forces seem to stand out as the needs of nature and the desires of man come increasingly into conflict:

● The necessity of the recently independent African governments to deliver economic prosperity to their rapidly growing populations, even if this has to be at the expense of the animals, forests, rivers.

● Individual examples of human greed that collectively form a threat to nature. This is especially true of well organized and financed poaching rings which sometimes involve high-level government officials of the countries involved.

There is little, if any, internal political pressure on African governments to preserve nature, just as there was little in America before the depletion of animal species and the pollution of the environment began to be debated.

In the traditional African view, the animal is either a danger, threatening crops and cattle, or a much-needed source of food. For the 80 to 90 per cent of the continent's population that live as peasants, it is absurd to talk about a rhinoceros as a natural asset.

Additionally, few educated Africans have shown much interest in becoming professional conservationists, since desk and government office work are the main status symbols here.

As a result, it is usually predominantly white international organizations — American and European based — that are cast in the role of defending nature against black governments, which must respond to demand for food and jobs.

"We have to be extremely careful in presenting a conservation viewpoint," said one foreigner deeply involved in wildlife preservation in Tanzania. "Otherwise, it tends to be counterproductive, and the government just digs its heels in more, no matter what the costs."

Conservationists who have studied East Africa's growing problems in the race between the need to conserve and the need to develop in poverty stricken countries generally list three crucial facets of the contest:

● Probably the most important in the long run is the question of land use — should traditional habitats and migration routes of animals be left undisturbed, or should they be turned over to human needs? Is it possible to combine the two?

● Pollution is seen as "an emerging problem" in the words of a Kenya government report on the environment, done for the United Nations. Key water supplies or animals are being affected.

● The most recent phenomenon to attract the attention of conservationists is "visitor impact." With more than half a million tourists pouring into East Africa's game sanctuaries each year — a tenfold increase over the past decade — scientists are concerned about the lack of control and planning being shown in some areas.

It is generally accepted that the days of wild animals living outside game sanctuaries are numbered in East Africa. Herds of elephants, rhino, antelope and other beasts are driven into the parks, and new studies are being launched on the conditions inside the sanctuaries.

The flood of foreign visitors has brought in badly needed foreign currency and has greatly stimulated the hard-pressed local economies across East Africa.

New hotels are sprouting in Nairobi, Kenya, along the Indian Ocean coast, and throughout the game parks. Package tour operators from America, West Germany and Britain are filling them almost as soon as they open.

Scientists have begun to study the effect of nearly continuous observation by tourists of some animals in parks. Although the results are still tentative, it is clear that change is being forced on many animals, especially the lions, cheetahs, leopards and other predators that visitors to Africa are so eager to see.

In the 44-square-mile Nairobi National Park, which is located only a 10-minute drive from the capital and which drew 43,000 vehicles last year, it is usual to see in late afternoon a circle of cars and minibuses around a pride of lions, who stare with boredom back at the game watchers.

Most lions begin their hunt about 4 p.m., wildlife experts say. Yet there have been increasing instances of cars actually blocking the movements of the lions. There have also been cases of vehicles chasing along with predators during a hunt and preventing them from making or creating a kill.

Albert Mongi, Tanzania's assistant director of national parks and a man rated by experts as one of Africa's best conservationists, says "Very subjectively you can tell there are changes and signs of stress in animal behavior because of visitor impact. We must avoid having the parks degenerate to the level of an open zoo."

The hotels and lodges that are springing up in game parks require permanent staffs, meaning that increasingly large human settlements are taking root. In Serengeti, there is a regular bus service across the national park now.

Tanzanian officials say that because their parks are larger than those of Kenya, they can direct the tourist flow more evenly by spacing new hotels and camps far apart.

But scientists think that even more drastic steps may be needed to avoid damage. Game parks throughout East Africa are certain within a few years to impose ceilings on the number of visitors who can go into the parks daily.

While viewing visitor impact with increasing concern, conservationists are also deeply thankful that tourists have taken such an interest in African wildlife.

This has convinced some African governments that the animals and open land must be preserved, since in a real sense a zebra is worth more to Kenya as a tourist attraction than as meat. This is the theme of campaigns Kenya is using to try to persuade villagers to refrain from killing off wild animals.

...As Professional Poachers Are Decimating the Wildlife

A small roll of barbed wire bunched oddly in the middle lay beside the dusty road in a lonely corner of Tsavo, the world's largest national park. A car bounced by, and the three occupants glanced curiously at the wire.

A few miles deeper in the 8,000-square-mile wildlife sanctuary, located in southern Kenya, a second curiosity came into view. A flatbed truck, carrying no license plate and with eight poorly dressed African men on the back, was parked by the road.

Private trucks are not allowed into national parks in Kenya. Carrying large sticks, the men began to move toward the small car, which quickly drove away.

The visitors left the park at a nearby exit gate shortly afterward. Usually the game warden or ranger on duty casually waves cars through. This time, however, the car was halted, and the ranger engaged the game-watchers in conversation for about 10 minutes.

He asked if they had seen many animals, if they had come across anything unusual, and if there were other people traveling with them. The answers were negative and he let the car through.

That evening one of the travelers happened to mention the odd morning to one of East Africa's many amateur conservationists, who grimaced and shook his head.

"You saw a poaching operation in broad daylight," the East Africa resident told the surprised visitor. "The barbed wire was a snare, probably one of many those men had planted around there.

"And the game warden must have been covering for them, for a price," he added with resignation.

The incident, which occurred a few months ago, underlines a significant and, to conservationists, highly dangerous change that has occurred in East Africa in recent years: killing wild animals for profit has become a big-time business.

Just how big is difficult to say, as is often the case with organized illegal activity. East Africa's vast distances and poor communications make such estimates even more difficult.

But it is certain that the number of animals illegally killed in east, central and southern Africa each year reaches into the hundreds of thousands.

In western Kenya alone, poaching has contributed to the extinction of 20 mammal species since 1885, a Kenya government report on the environment disclosed recently.

The slaughter of spotted cats for pelts that are turned into rugs or coats for Italian matrons, and of rhinoceroses for horns that are shipped to India and China to be ground into powder for aphrodisiac or medical purposes, is large enough to have stirred conservationists and African governments into strong action to curb such exports.

Not all the products from the animal industry go so far afield, however.

Lamps made from zebra hooves and legs, wildebeeste skin rugs, stools made from elephant legs and lion skin wallets compete for display space in curio shops frequented by European and American tourists in Nairobi.

Some of these items come onto the market through legal channels. Game wardens are licensed to shoot injured or dangerous animals under certain circumstances.

But conservationists are convinced that most of the local skin trade springs from poaching, which depends on a flourishing system of duplicating or falsifying the permits that are required for the sale of animal trophies in Kenya.

The Kenya government demonstrated its concern this month by enacting a complete ban on the sale of leopard skins in the country, amid reports of a shrinking leopard population.

The ban followed by slightly more than one year a ban by Kenya on the sale of cheetah skins. These moves are among the first in Africa to parallel American and European restrictions on the sale of pelts of endangered species.

In the past 30 years poachers have virtually eliminated leopard and cheetah in some regions of Kenya, Somalia and Ethiopia. In Ethiopia, hunters have also decimated the mountain nyala, a great gray antelope, and the walia ibex, a wild sheep. Both animals are found only in Ethiopia.

"You could walk around on a morning 10 to 15 years ago in Masailand South and see a dozen rhino," says former professional hunter George Dove of a region in Tanzania that he knows well. "Now, you just won't see any."

Free-lance poachers, who usually live near wildlife sanctuaries, use wire snares, poison darts and arrows, spears and large pits to bring down game. A large animal trapped in a pit will be hacked to death with axes and hunting dogs are sometimes used.

The small time poachers "are something of a natural drain that has been going on for generations, for food and a few hides," says one official of the East Africa Wildlife Association. "It is a manageable problem. It is the fellows who come in in trucks, shooting 300 to 400 animals a night in a game reserve, that are the big threat."

These motorized poachers use high velocity rifles and modern shotguns, S. A. Saibull, director of Tanzania's parks, recently told a reporter.

Another knowledgeable source in Kenya added: "They seem well financed, and not to worry very much about the consequences if they are caught."

Much of the work is geared to lucrative export markets. Ivory tusks hacked off dead elephants are shipped for carving in India and China, at $7 a pound. In Tanzania recently, investigators discovered 52 rhino horns in one cache, waiting to be shipped to the east for a $10,000 payoff to the middleman.

A well-placed bribe can often do away with the necessity of any permit at all, conservationists contend.

Thus far it has been impossible to document the suspicions of high-level involvement, but lenient treatment of violators and the lack of investigative follow-through about what happens to the skins lends some credence to the suspicions.

Protection too late for Cheetah?

IN ROME, WHERE IT'S HARD ENOUGH JUST BEING A CAR, THE FIAT 124 IS USED AS A TAXI.

While we certainly never intended the 124S to be a taxi, it turns out that the taxi drivers in Rome think it makes an extraordinary one.

To fully appreciate the significance of this, you have to know a little bit about Romans and Roman driving conditions.

To start with, the streets of ancient Rome are far too narrow for cars. So, in order to fit, cars must be small on the outside. Taxis, paradoxically, must be big on the inside in order for passengers to fit.

(The Fiat 124S is as short as a VW Beetle on the outside—yet on the inside it's big enough to comfortably seat 4 large adults.)

Secondly, to a Roman motorist, staying ahead of other Roman motorists is a matter of honor. To be passed is to be dishonored. And to the taxi driver—the "professional" motorist—this need for performance is all-consuming.

(The Fiat 124S goes from 0 to 60 in 13.4 seconds, which is fast enough to take most anything in its class and several cars not in its class.)

Thirdly, in Rome, a parking space is anywhere a driver chooses to alight from his car. This creates an obstacle course through which the taxi driver and his car must be able to weave at top speed.

(The Fiat 124S handles like a sports car because, among other things, it has the same kind of steering and suspension as our 124 Spider. It also has disc brakes on all four wheels, just in case. And if you don't like to shift, it's available with automatic transmission.)

And fourthly, despite all these requirements, in order to show a profit at the end of the week, the taxi driver needs a car that is inexpensive to run as well as buy.

(The Fiat 124S gets 30 miles to a gallon of gas and costs just $2,750.*)

Now, if you're considering buying a small car, it would certainly pay you to consider the Fiat 124S. After all, if it can make it in Rome as a taxi, it can make it anywhere as a car.

FLORIDA ORANGE GROWERS 'INSULTED' BY MOONMEN

LAKELAND, Fla. (UPI) — The Florida citrus industry was up in arms Monday over what it said is bad publicity its products wrongfully received from the Apollo 16 astronauts.

"The so-called orange juice astronaut Charles Duke had trouble with in space and on the moon is a synthetic which contains no pure orange juice," Floriday Citrus Mutual general manager Tom Osborne said.

Osborne said NASA officials in Houston have confirmed that the beverage aboard the lunar spaceship was "Tang," a synthetic. Osborne said Tang contains no pure orange juice.

Industry officials said they were "insulted" by continued references by Duke to the product as orange juice, leaving millions of people thinking be referred to 100 per cent pure orange juice.

Duke's problems centred around a leaking straw built into the spacesuit causing him to get the liquid in his helmet.

But astronaut John Young reported an upset stomach which he blamed on the beverage, which is laced with potassium to head off other medical problems.

Aid Widens Gulf Between Rich, Poor

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United Nations Children's Fund has concluded that development programs in the last decade actually widened the gap between rich and poor in the less-developed countries by overemphasizing economic growth and industrialization.

That assessment is set out in a study that the secretariat of UNICEF has drawn up as a first step towards laying down goals for the fund to follow in helping children and adolescents in the Second UN Development Decade, 1971-80.

The study says a review of national and international development strategies of the 1960s shows an "excessive and unbalanced emphasis on the growth of the domestic product" as an end in itself, "and not enough consideration of production and consumption patterns and effective use of labor".

"Growth strategies failed to take sufficient account of the fact that the greater part of the population in many of the less-developed countries was engaged in farming and other activities at a low level of productivity."

Agricultural price policies kept down the profitability of traditional agriculture employing many people, it explains, while subsidies encouraged commercial agriculture employing relatively fewer people.

As modern industry began to develop, the study adds, "gains in income accrued mainly to better organized and skilled workers and the holders of property which could appreciate quickly in value . . .

"Highly productive activities involved only a small part of the population, leaving the bulk of the people largely outside the influence of new potentials for change and development.

"Thus, as between countries, so also within each country, disparities in incomes, economic opportunities and living standards increased still further."

Muscle Aging Linked to Heroin

VANCOUVER (CP) — The possibility that heroin addiction causes muscle changes similar to aging is being investigated by the B.C. Narcotic Addiction Foundation.

An initial series of tests on 20 addicts indicated a link between addiction and apparent artificial aging of leg muscles, said Dr. Hugh Williams of the foundation.

One 19-year-old who had been addicted to heroin for 2½ years had muscle changes that do not normally occur until a person is more than 50 years old, he said.

"The people tested were not generally aware of their muscle condition, and those who were thought it was the result of poor diet and lack of exercise."

Although more tests are needed to prove the connection conclusively, the initial indications are that heroin upsets the calcium balance and synthesis of protein in muscles to cause artificial aging.

If this proves to be true, then it could explain the severe muscle cramps that are a major physical barrier to addicts wanting to withdraw from the drug, Dr. Williams said.

Garden Show Scheduled

The Gordon Head Garden Club announced today it will hold its fall show at the Gordon Head recreation centre, Lambrick and Feltham, Saturday, Sept. 9.

Entrants will be able to compete in 96 sections, under general flowers, decorative, potted plants, vegetables, fruit, and a special section for juniors.

Mrs. Anne Steers will speak on summer bulbs at the group's next meeting, to be held 8 p.m. Monday at 4375 Torquay.

Plans for a tour to Queen Elizabeth Park and the Bloedel Conservatory will also be outlined at the meeting.

JOGGER IRATE OVER DOGS

Esquimalt municipal council agreed Monday night to examine the stray dog situation, in response to a letter from an irate citizen.

Ronald Estes, 1206 Old Esquimalt Road said he had been attacked last week while jogging near his home, by a stray dog. Now he goes armed.

"I was neither maimed nor mutilated," he wrote, "because I now carry a two-foot club for protection."

The matter was referred to council's finance committee for attention.

Letters are to be directed to the SPCA and to the school board asking if stray dogs in the municipality are a problem. Esquimalt pays $8,000 annually to the SPCA for dog-catching services.

Treasurer Peter Cairns told aldermen there is still a problem in enforcement of the dog licensing bylaw. There are still some hold-outs, he reported.

Cat Case Dismissed

A rare trespassing cat case was dismissed in provincial court Monday after the judge found the complainant had lured cats on to his property on other occasions with baited traps.

The cat owner charged was Gordon Donald Mackay, 22, of 418 Heather. The complainant was Joseph Faller, 427 Heather, who had insisted that the charge be taken to court.

Victoria police constable Louis Truesdale told Judge E. F. N. Robinson there had been several complaints in recent years of cats "gone missing" in the neighborhood.

Evidence showed Mrs. Faller spotted Mackay's cat on her front lawn at 5 p.m. Feb. 10. Faller put the cat in a sack, tied the open end and placed the bundle in a rear garage.

Mackay and his wife came looking for the cat at 11 p.m. Faller refused to give it to them and police were called. Mackay accused Faller of trying to steal the cat, and Faller countered with the charge of cat trespassing.

Sidney Buys Land

The town of Sidney has acquired a 9½-acre land parcel near the main airport approach for $85,000 and plans to use part of it for parks and a public works yard.

The land belongs to Dennis Bowcott and was part of an area which council proposed to rezone from residential to commercial earlier this year.

Protesting residents who already live in this area forced council to drop the rezoning plan which had been recommended by a department of transport survey.

Mayor Stan Dear said Monday the town has also purchased two lots beside the municipal hall for $13,500 and will reserve these for future expansion.

Woman Far From Downhearted In Fight to Get Sewer Lines

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Mrs. Judie Garraghan came within eight signatures of winning a new sewer system for her neighborhood.

But is she downhearted?

Of course not.

When your backyard is awash with unsavory seeps you have to be buoyant.

Mrs. Garraghan lives in a four-year-old Central Saanich subdivision where septic percolation is more of a theory than a reality.

During the winter's heavy downpours, there was more runoff water than the clay-type soil could absorb and septic fields became flooded.

INTO BASEMENTS

Some of it ran into driveways, carports and basements.

Children found it fascinating and played in it. They still do, oblivious to the disease-carrying potential.

And Mrs. Garraghan, with three youngsters of her own, took steps to persuade other property owners in the subdivision that sewers would be better.

Central Saanich municipality agreed, but other areas had priority. Only a two-thirds majority of landowners could initiate a local improvement project to sewer the area lying between Stelly Cross Road, Seabrook and Veyaness.

For three weeks Mrs. Garraghan trudged around the neighborhood with a petition. There are 140 properties and she needed the approval of 93 owners.

She got 85 — eight short of the 66 2-3 majority stiupulated, but she turned in the list anyway.

With such a narrow margin she felt the municipal council could find some way of closing the gap.

Some of those who did not sign may change their minds, she hopes. But a clerk in the town hall explained that is not permitted. A new petition would have to be circulated in an effort to get a favorable response.

SECOND ATTEMPT

Council will deal with the matter at its May 1 meeting, and there are alternatives such as the municipally-initiated project. But the rules are different.

Actually it was the second time Mrs. Garraghan canvassed the territory. First it was to urge the municipality to come up with a cost estimate for building sewers — $136 a parcel plus hookup.

She did both chores with determination, single-handedly even though she needed baby-sitters each time she went out, "or else I had to drag them (children) with me."

Her husband is a tugboat man, is frequently at sea, and was not able to help.

Mrs. Garraghan's attitude can only be described as adamant. She admits she can be unrestrained, but in this case she recognizes that discretion counts, that persuasion goes farther than coercion.

She has allowed little to get her down, despite the fact that her children are on the young side — Jay, 11; John, 9½; Jade six — that she has recently had major surgery and still takes almost daily radiation treatment in hospital.

It is her feeling the municipality should have demanded better septic tank and storm drain standards before approving the subdivision off Stelly Cross Road.

Construction began less than four years ago, nine houses have been built since January of this year and construction continues, despite the deficiencies of septic fields and surface drainage.

And the room they reveal—luxurious! Smooth, tough vinyl upholstery. Deep cushion, fully reclining front bucket seats. Tinted glass all around, flow-through fresh air — Electric rear window defroster is standard equipment.

The hauling power in the overhead cam engine comes easy, too, at a touch of the accelerator . . . and smooth with a standard 4-speed stick shift or optional console-mounted automatic.

Powerful front disc brakes supply exceptional stopping power to match. Whitewalls spice the trim.

We make our station wagon so you can get more into it and more out of it. And keep it about the size of a small sedan so you can park it as easily as you can pack it.

Developer Suspends $200 Million Plan

TORONTO (CP) — The developers of a proposed $200-million Eaton Centre redevelopment project in downtown Toronto said today they have suspended further steps in order to reassess the scheme.

"I don't know whether you'd say it's dead, but what we have to do is reassess the situation pretty carefully," said Neil Wood, president of Fairview Corp. Ltd., developers of the proposed project in the downtown area.

Wood said in an interview the decision to reassess the project followed a breakdown in negotiations for a purchase price for city-owned streets within the area planned for development.

The project includes office and retail development with a 250-store shopping mall, largely on property now occupied by an Eaton store.

Boeing

Boeing Co. earnings and sales both dropped in the first quarter of 1972 relative to sales and earnings for the first three months last year.

First quarter earnings this year totalled $6,954,000, from sales of $740,837,000. Sales for the first three months last year, not counting an extraordinary credit for termination of the supersonic transport program, were $857,969,000. Earnings for the period totalled $7,185,000.

The 1972 first quarter earnings amounted to 32 cents a share, compared with 33 cents a share the year before. First quarter earnings last year, including the SST credit, were $26,965,000, or $1.24 a share.

NWL

NWL Financial Corporation Ltd. and subsidiary companies has announced net income for the first quarter of 1972 of $135,904, equal to six cents per share for the period. This compares with a net income of $46,939 during the same quarter last year, equal to two cents a share.

BCFP

British Columbia Forest Products Ltd. reported first-quarter net earnings of $1.4 million on sales of $37.5 million, compared with earnings of $400,000 on sales of $29.3 million in the corresponding period in 1971.

First-quarter earnings were equal to 35 cents a common share, compared with seven cents in the first quarter last year.

President Ian Barclay said current demands of the International Woodworkers of America would cost B.C. Forest Products some $20 million and called for honest and objective deliberations by labor and management to reach a mutually acceptable settlement.

Dome

Dome Mines Ltd. of Toronto and its subsidiaries had increased profits of $778,270 or 40 cents a share for the first three months of this year.

This compares with $614,930 or 32 cents a share a year earlier. For the parent company, Dome Mines, profit in the first quarter was the equivalent of 29 cents a share, compared with 30 cents a share in the same period last year.

Profits of subsidiary Campbell Red Lake Mines Ltd. of Toronto increased to $771,079 or 19 cents a share from $507,187 or 13 cents.

B.C. Research

British Columbia Research, the technical arm of the B.C. Research Council, reported a net income of $342,176 in 1971, exceeding for the first time the provincial government grant of $320,000.

Contract research revenue increased to $1,654,868 last year over $1,359,941 in 1970. With investment income and the government grant, total income for 1971 was $2,051,331, compared with $1,714,696 in 1970. B.C. Research is involved in applied biology, chemistry and physics, engineering, management services insect control and odor research.

Rayonier

The sales of Rayonier Canada Ltd. increased in 1971 to $78,761,000 from $72,924,000 the previous year, reports a company publication for employees. Rayonier Canada, a wholly-owned subsidiary of ITT Rayonier Inc. of New York, does not issue a public report and does not disclose profit and loss figures.

Joint Venture

VANCOUVER (CP) — The biggest builder of prefabricated houses in Japan is considering a joint venture in Canada to assure a supply of raw materials.

No firm deal has been made yet, however, and if agreement is reached it won't be announced until fall, says Tokutaro Kawai, manager of Daiwa House Industry Co. Ltd.'s planning and foreign department.

He said the Japanese government's goal of 1.9 million housing units a year for the next five years has spurred his company's expansion. Daiwa currently turns out 3,500 prefab units a month from 13 plants.

Kawai estimated that Canada now exports about half of the imported lumber and asbestos going into his company's pre-fab houses.

He said Japan has a chronic shortage of houses.

Musical Rent

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Musqueam Indian band of Vancouver has been granted a $1,300 grant from the provincial government's First Citizens Fund to help cover the cost of renting musical instruments.

THE FIRST 27 STOREYS WERE BUILT ABOUT TWO BILLION YEARS AGO. WE JUST ADDED THE TOP THREE.

There's a spot, not far from the very heart of Victoria, where age-old rockface juts to the height of a twenty-seven storey building. It's a beautiful spot. With an incredible view that stretches out to the sea and beyond. And it is on this spot that we added the 28th, 29th and 30th floors. And we called it Faircliff. Victoria's oldest and newest condominium.

Faircliff is no ordinary place to live. The extra touches tell you that right away. Like the open roof garden for sun worshippers and nature buffs. The large recreation room with a full range of leisure activities. And swirlpool to help you unwind. Private patios. Two acres of natural landscaping. And, of course, the spectacular Faircliff view.

We've created something very different in condominium living at Faircliff. Come and see for yourself. We're open daily from 12 noon to 7 p.m. And Sunday from noon to 5 p.m.

ANOTHER DAWSON DEVELOPMENTS PROJECT.

Afton Gets Injunction to Halt Equatorial Drills

Equatorial Resources Ltd. has been ordered by the British Columbia Supreme Court to stop drilling on two claims in the Kamloops area in a staking dispute with Afton Mines Ltd.

Equatorial has been restrained from announcing any drilling results as well, pending decision on who owns the two disputed claims.

Afton vice-president Douglas Price said in an interview from Vancouver today:

"We're very concerned about this. They are drilling just 500 feet from our copper discovery. We're confident we own the two claims.

"Our main concern, besides the ownership question, is that they may have drilled just outside the orebody and if the drill comes up empty (no copper) it could have a detrimental effect upon the Afton stock.

Price said he did not expect a quick court decision on the disputed claims. Afton president Chester Millar flew to Kamloops Monday to recheck the claims.

The Afton property lies 10 miles west of Kamloops and is within sight of the Trans-Canada Highway. Its discovery of significant copper values has produced record volumes of trading on the Vancouver Stock Exchange this month.

Afton will continue drilling for three months to be certain they have a mine. To date their estimate is 10 million tons of two per cent copper, enough to pay off mine construction costs in two years.

However, no decision will be made until October when a feasibility study is complete.

If they proceed with a mine, Afton almost certainly will come to an arrangement with the huge Placer company to develop the project on a sharing basis.

Price said a number of offers have already been made but Afton has turned them down.

"We are favorably disposed toward Placer and we are in no hurry at this stage. We want to explore the property in an orderly manner," he said.

The nearness of Kamloops is a major asset if the mine proceeds. There is no need to construct a townsite and supplies can be moved in easily along the highway.

The only potential problem is water supply but it can be obtained from Kamloops lake, two miles away. The lake shown on maps on Afton's property dries up in summer.

Afton would dump mine tailings in a ravine on its property.

Scores of nearby companies are engaged in drilling programs and further copper discoveries are anticipated but to date only Afton has indicated significant copper resources.

Dear Sisters of St. Ann

thank you!

On behalf of the citizens of British Columbia, we acknowledge publicly and thank you for your magnificent gift of an operating hospital with a competent staff, which will be known as

Queen Victoria General Hospital

While the hospital, because of its location, will be used primarily by citizens of the Greater Victoria area, it is a gift which adds greatly to the public hospital facilities of the Province, and we are deeply moved by your overwhelming generosity.

You may be sure that we shall do everything possible to maintain the fine tradition of selfless community service and dedication of staff which has existed since the opening of your original hospital in 1876.

The SOUTHERN VANCOUVER ISLAND HOSPITAL SOCIETY will operate the hospital.

PETAWAWA, Ont. — Chief Warrant Officer Phil LaTulippe passed the 100-mile mark at 6:25 a.m. EST today in what he hopes will be a record long distance walk.

Averaging about five miles an hour since his 9 a.m. start Monday, LaTulippe said he hopes to go "above and beyond" the 255.84-mile walk record set last weekend by Labor MP Dick Crawshaw on a motorcycle track at Liverpool, Eng.

LaTulippe, 53, is eating soup, hot honey and water while covering the 4.8-mile route set out at the Canadian Forces base here.

OTTAWA — A Maoist who hurled leaflets to the floor of the Commons while shouting "down with U.S. imperialism" last week has had his appeal against an immigration department deportation order dismissed.

Fred Ferdman, 25, a graduate student and teaching assistant at the University of British Columbia who came to Vancouver from Pasadena, Calif., in 1968, must get out of the country "as soon as possible," a department spokesman said today.

BURLINGTON, Ont. — Former transport minister Paul Hellyer accused the federal government Monday of insensitivity and remoteness concerning real needs of Canadians.

FALMOUTH, Mass. — Paul Revere, 74, of West Falmouth, great-great grandson of the revolutionary patriot of the same name, died Monday in Falmouth Hospital.

Born in Glace Bay, N.S., he was a retired investment broker and a director of Revere Copper and Brass Co., founded in 1801 by the first Revere.

NEW YORK — Among those attending a reception and dinner in midtown Manhattan Monday night in support of the Variety Club were film actor Cary Grant and Princess Alexandra of Kent, cousin of the Queen.

SAN FRANCISCO — Receiving several hundred dollars in back pay apparently prompted many municipal railway drivers to take an extra holiday.

At least 90 drivers — 20 per cent of the day's work force — didn't show up for work after they got from $300 to $450 retroactive pay. "The no-shows were just living it up, evidently," said a spokesman.

CHICAGO — A Chicago policeman had part of a little finger amputated after it was chewed by a man he tried to question.

Patrolman John Thulis, 28, said when he asked the man his name, the man refused to identify himself and grabbed Thulis' hand, biting the end of his little finger "clean through the bone. I was stunned," Thulis said. "He sawed away on it like he was chewing on a banana."

PICO RIVERA, Calif. — Forty car owners picketed a Ford Motor Co. plant in this Los Angeles suburb, saying the vehicles they purchased from Ford and other manufacturers were "lemons."

The group, known as the Outraged Consumers Action Committee, was led by Eddie Campos, who gained U.S.-wide publicity last August when he set fire to his $10,000 Lincoln Continental.

BLYTH, England — Town officials have warned housewives in local government housing they will be evicted if they continue to throw parties to sell consumer goods.

The warning was made after local shopkeepers complained their sales were being affected by housewives selling everything from underwear to kitchen equipment at cut-rate prices.

SHERBROOK, Que. — Merill Tannahill of nearby Allan's Corners is crying over spilt milk — 16,500 gallons of it.

The driver of Tannahill's milk pickup and drainage truck fell asleep while loading the vehicle and did not stop the pump in time. Tannahill was unable to collect insurance because the courts ruled it was the fault of his driver and not the truck.

CAIRO — A granary keeper in the Nile Delta who was asked to account for 78 tons of missing rice said sparrows had eaten it.

Investigators discounted his explanation when they found that the rice had been kept in closed, bird-proof containers.

Moore's mount is a 2,000-pound Hereford bull. "I don't suggest that frustrated motorists sell their cars to take up this type of transport," Moore, 30, warned. "I have a way with bulls."

LONDON — Schoolboy William Owen unearthed some Roman relics — in a waste disposal container.

Owen, 15, says he spends most of his spare time rummaging around building sites and road works in the hopes of finding archeological remains. His dustbin treasure included pottery, ornaments and an iron pen made in the first century by Roman settlers in Britain.

DRAINS HIGH ON BUDGET

One of the biggest items on Oak Bay's budget for 1972 will be $258,700 for surface drains.

Oak Bay council settled down to its first session of budget-paring Monday night, trying to whittle down an estimated 46.23 general mill rate, compared to last year's 37.58.

All agreed that the surface drain expenditure could not be cut because of damage caused by flooding in this year's storms.

Ald. Douglas McLelland said, "Improving the drainage system in Oak Bay is the highest priority. We shouldn't take a nickel out of this item."

Earlier in the evening council had slashed $123,000 from its $199,500 road construction budget.

Ald. Douglas Watts noted, "We are swinging most of the roads money into this (surface drains) for one year only."

Ald. Brian Smith suggested that perhaps the money for surface drains could be raised through short-term borrowing.

After municipal engineer-planner Geoffrey White had been asked to name the affected areas in order of priority, McCelland observed, "When you have water in the basement the misery is equal."

White told council that bringing the municipality's drainage system into good working order would take "in the order of $200,000 a year for five years."

He added that removing tree roots from storm drains would require $2 million.

The council agreed to study smaller items in the budget and then decide how the money for surface drains should be raised.

Before council got down to paring costs, the 1972 estimated budget was $2,488,353. In 1971 the general budget was set at $1,979,635.

The council will be working on the budget again tonight and the general mill rate may be set at Monday's council meeting.

Sidney Tax Rate Up

Sidney council gave three readings Monday to the 1972 budget which set the total mill rate at 59.69, an increase of 2.91 mills over last year.

School taxes represent 32.78 mills and the hospital taxes .41 mills.

In the total budget of $1,136,664, Sidney will spend $132,155 on general government, $68,500 for public health and welfare, $28,248 for recreation and community services.

An allocation of $7,000 for parks will provide for the completion of Resthaven Drive Park on Tsehum Harbor.

Garbage disposal costs have increased by $4,000 this year to $32,900.

Aldermen Find Raise 'Peanuts'

Three Sidney aldermen regard their new salary increases as "peanuts".

A bylaw given third reading Monday provides for an increase in the mayor's salary from $2,500 to $2,662, and for the aldermen from $1,000 to $1,065.

The increase is within the 6.5 per cent provincial government guideline.

Ald. Fred Robinson said he regarded the limit as "a slap in the face" and he wanted to leave the indemnity at the present rate.

Ald. Hugh Hollingworth said it was "ridiculous and Ald. Chris Andersen agreed.

"I don't see why we should take everything the government hands us," grumbled Andersen.

"Are you going to defeat this bylaw out of spite?" Mayor Stan Dear asked Andersen.

"Not spite, principle," replied Andersen.

Mayor Dear noted that new legislation will provide for the addition of two more aldermen on Sidney council in December and felt this will eventually beat the workload.

The bylaw passed although opposed by Robinson and Andersen.

A Day at the Track As the Search Goes On

It's 5:30 in the morning when Cec Moorhouse checks in at Sandown. Roy Jewell isn't far behind, and neither is Colleen Hague.

That's when work begins, and hope is often born in the Jewell-Moorhouse stable in the never-ending search for the big horse. And it's the same all along shed row this week, as it has been for the past month or so, as mostly Island owners prepare for the opening of the Thoroughbred racing season at Vancouver's Exhibition Park next week.

Take Shadows Dividend, for instance. A $4,000 claimer early last year. Shadow's Dividend went on to win five races, share the purse in three others in 10 starts, capture the Premier's Championship and win $30,000. Which isn't bad for an $800 yearling purchase. Now is it?

And the Shadow is very well, thank you and "training well," Ian Murdoch is the author of that statement. He is looking after Shadow's Dividend for owner and fireman Tommy Druce. Although Tommy is listed as trainer, "he's doing it by telephone," said Murdoch. Horse racing isn't yet that lucrative that Tommy wants to give up his firefighter's job.

"We're pointing Shadow's Dividend for the Victoria Day Handicap (May 22)," said Murdoch, "and we expect him to be running in most of the bigger handicaps this season."

Murdoch has 11 horses under his care. Some are his, some he trains for others.

It's the Breeding That Counts

There's Troubleshooter, Anatefka, and The World Is Round, to name a few.

The first two can give the pedigree pundits something to talk about. The breeding is there. Troubleshooter is a son of Mr. Consistency, a winner of several major races in California. He won $4,280 last year. Anatefka is a First Table filly and won $3,352 in 1970.

The World Is Round once was owned by track operator Jack Diamond, and won the Nursery Stakes two years ago. Claimed last year for $6,250, the question now is: Is he sound? "He's been working well enough," said Murdoch.

Laurie Kirk, too, has two untried two-year-olds, Travelling Mist and Hardy Andy; but for anyone attracted to names, how about Doferdinkle? If she's a maiden, she's only raced twice. Then check her ancestry. She's by that busy First Table again. And so it is in almost every barn; hoofbeats are pounding out their message of hope.

Meanwhile, out on the track the workouts were going on. There are still about 80 horses at Sandown, and regardless of the fact that races take place at night, training goes on in the morning. Why? It's always been done, that's why.

A horse's training program can vary according to the trainer, naturally. But in the basic Jewell method of hopefully producing winners, it's four days of galloping, and one day of walking. If that fifth day is a Thoroughbred's day off, once training is advanced it's three days of galloping followed by a "work" on the fourth day.

It was such an occasion for Uncle on Monday. Now Uncle is a horse, a big (16.2 hands), amiable, three-year-old chestnut gelding by Haig and Worthy Lea, and is the current big horse of the Jewell-Moorhouse stable.

And it turns out that Uncle has fair enough credentials at that. He won the two-year-old futurity at Sandown last year. But what really enamored him to Jewell and Moorhouse was his first start at Ex-Park.

The Time They Called Roy 'Uncle'

"Bill Olson was looking after him for us," Jewell recalled. "We knew he wasn't too quick out of the gate, and we figured that maybe he'd need a couple of races. And sure enough when the break came in this race, where was Uncle? Three lengths back.

"But he came on with a big rush, and won by five."

And if a trainer is supposed to know everything about a horse, don't always believe it. For as Jewell continued:

"Uncle paid $50.60 to win, and honest, we didn't have a cent on him. It was funny, too, because after that everybody around the track started calling me "Uncle'."

If Uncle was impressed by this nice talk, he gave no outward sign as he was being prettied up for his workout by Colleen. He was on his best behaviour, and even allowed Colleen to clean out his nostrils without sneezing on her, as he had cheekily done the day before.

But now it was time for work. And what did Uncle do, when asked?

He went three-eighths in "seven and four," the timer called, which to the uninitiated is 37 4-5 seconds. And if not exactly startling, it was "a good work. I'm very pleased," said Jewell. "I was a fifth out," said Moorhouse, who also had a watch on Uncle. "He's deceptive," added Colleen, "he's got such a long stride, hasn't he?"

And even if Uncle doesn't turn out to be the real Mr. Horse — it's a long summer ahead — somehow he could be excused for thinking that, in this stable at least, he was horse for the day.

Those were real smiles all round.

DOUG PEDEN - EDITOR

By IAN BROWN
Forum World Features

LONDON — The Olympic Games were revived in 1896 in an attempt to recapture the spirit of international goodwill through sport fostered by the early Greeks.

But in recent decades they have become a focal point for political intrigues and clashing ideologies and the stories pounded out by the army of journalists present tend to have as much prominence on the news pages as on the sports pages. At the last Olympics in Mexico four years ago, there were student riots, black power demonstrations, objections to the participation of South Africa, allegations of illegal payments, sex-changes, and the taking of dope. Not a great deal was heard of the spirit of international goodwill through sport.

This summer's Games in Munich will no doubt follow the same pattern. There is an added irritant in the fact that the site chosen is only a short drive from the border between East and West Germany. The East Germans are said to be taking great precautions to prevent defections. All their 2,000 representatives at this year's Games have been chosen "for their reliability and loyalty to Communism." Members of their families are being kept on the east side of the border, presumably as hostages.

WARFARE AT POOL

Officials on both sides of this divided country will no doubt be hoping there won't be a repetition of the ugly scenes at the 1956 Melbourne Olympics when sporting rivalry gave way to nationalistic warfare. A Hungarian water polo player was butted in the face by a Russian. As the blood flowed, Hungarian supporters stormed to the side of the pool and screamed "murderers." The Russian supporters shouted back "fascists" and the police had to break up the ensuing riot.

If the Iron Curtain countries do well this year, they will get massive coverage in the East German press for, following the 1952 Helsinki Olympics, editors of East German newspapers were on the carpet for failing to make sufficient political capital out of the success of Soviet athletes.

Apart from the political overtones, the Games have also developed into giant public relations exercises, with big business interests cashing in and the host country trying to outdo its predecessor. The Germans will certainly have something to boast about this year. Their particular piece of one-up-manship is to make this year's Olympics the first all-electronic Games. No longer will there be starters' pistols, finishing tapes, and judges. There will be automatic starting devices and closed-circuit television will flash photo-finishes of every race on large screens.

The Games, which are expected to attract two million visitors to Munich in August and September, will be on the site of a war-scarred airfield. But one man almost disrupted all the plans to move in the complicated technological equipment. This was 91-year-old Timofey Prokorov, a Russian with flowing beard, who took up squatters' rights on the airfield 20 years ago. He arrived with two goats, built himself a shack, dug a flower bed and cabbage patch, and later built a small church from bomb rubble.

REFUSED TO MOVE

His cabbage patch was needed to erect a show-jumping arena and he was told to move. "Niet," he said — and the people of Munich rallied to his support through a local newspaper. After months of squabbling, the architects agreed to place the show-jumping site elsewhere. Bushes and small trees have been planted round Prokorov's small church to give him sanctuary and, no doubt, to hide him from the visitors.

Perhaps his name will be added to the many interesting Olympic statistics. These make fascinating reading. The youngest competitor in living memory was Sonja Henie, then 10, who later skated to fame and fortune in Hollywood; and the oldest, 72-year-old Austrian horseman Artur von Pagracz. The youngest holder of a gold medal is 12-year-old Aileen Riggin, who won a diving event in 1920, and the tallest competitor has been Russian basketball player Jan Kruminsh, who measures seven feet, three inches and weighs 322 pounds.

Perhaps the oddest entry was in 1932. China, with a population of more than 400,000,000, was represented by one man — Liu Chang-chung.

CONCENTRATION is displayed by Lin Hsiu-ying of People's Republic of China as she returns shot to Patti Cash of United States during table tennis match Monday night at Los Angeles. Miss Lin won two of three games from Miss Cash as Chinese team continued North American tour.

Astros Ride High; Rangers Hot, Too

By The Associated Press

When you're hot, you're hot — and that's not just some more Texas bluster, podnuh.

How else can you account for Houston Astros and Texas Rangers continuing their winning ways Monday night on key blows by players who are hitting their weight, but not by much?

In the only baseball games played, the Astros nipped Chicago Cubs 3-2 on an 11th-inning home run by 211-pound John Edwards (.239 lifetime average) and the Rangers defeated California Angels 6-4 on a two-run seventh-inning single by 205-pound—and .254 average—Larry Biittner.

Houston's triumph was its seventh in a row and lifted the Astros into a tie with Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League West. Texas has won four straight and is tied with Chicago White Sox for second in the American League West, .042 percentage points behind Oakland Athletics.

LOSERS ARE LAST

At the other end of the scale, the Cubs have dropped six in a row, the Angels five, and both are last in their respective divisions.

Houston's strong start isn't surprising since most experts thought the Astros improved themselves with off-season deals.

"This is the best club I've ever gone to Florida with or come out of Florida with," manager Harry Walker said following spring training.

One of the new acquisitions, first baseman Lee May, socked a two-run homer in the first inning after Ron Santo's staked the Cubs to a 2-0 lead with a home run of his own.

JENKINS TAKES LOSS

Edwards' homer with one out in the 11th made a loser out of Cub ace Fergie Jenkins for the third time in the young season, although it was only the fourth hit of the game off the 1971 Cy Young Award winner.

"I didn't know it was gone when I hit it," said Edwards. "Those things don't usually happen to me."

What did he think of when he knew it was gone?

"I tried to remember to touch all the bases."

But the Rangers are in lofty surroundings for one of the few times since their birth as the expansion Washington Senators in 1971 and some of the boys aren't used to it.

"The two series coming Detroit and Boston are important because we've got to see if we can hold our own with the big boys," said Biittner.

Biittner, who had been struck out twice earlier by Andy Messersmith, drove home the tying and lead runs as the Rangers scored three times in the seventh. His bases-loaded single was a smash off the glove of first baseman Jim Spencer.

GRAHAM BUYS CHICAGO BULLS

VANCOUVER (UPI) — Chicago Bulls of the National Basketball Association have been purchased by Vancouver sportsman Peter Graham.

Graham confirmed the purchase by saying: "If you want it confirmed, I'm confirming it. It was me and me alone — a one-man group."

He said he has committeed himself to keeping the Bulls in Chicago for at least three years.

"After that, I wouldn't care to speculate on that point."

Graham operates the San Diego, Calif., Sports Arena, taking over last year when the San Diego Rockets NBA club was sold to Houston by Bob Breitbard.

Graham declined to name a purchase price. The Bulls paid $1.6 million to enter as an expansion team five years ago.

"It was an opportunity I couldn't pass up," Graham said. "When you have an opportunity to get a team with the third best record and fourth best attendance in the NBA, and that team's in the second or third-best population area in the country, I'd say it was a pretty good opportunity.

Third Celtic Sale In Seven Years

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Celtics, one of the National Basketball Association's most successful franchises, has been sold for the third time in seven years.

The Celtics, eliminated Sunday in the playoff for the NBA's Eastern Conference title, was bought by a syndicate headed by an unnamed New York lawyer. Announcement of the agreement was made in New York by Investors Funding Corp. which holds controlling stock.

No details of the sale were disclosed and it was not immediately known whether the club would stay in Boston or whether the organization's personnel would be affected.

Sale is subject to NBA approval.

Wesley Wood, a spokesman for Investors Funding Corp., denied reports that the sale price was $6 million.

Best Shot by Blues May Not Be Enough

ST. LOUIS (CP) — Coach Al Arbour of St. Louis Blues sounds like the captain of a sinking riverboat.

"No matter what happens from here on, I'm really proud of those kids," Arbour said Monday on the eve of the game that could end his club's Stanley Cup playoff efforts.

"They won't go down without giving it their best shot."

Even their best shot may not be good enough to keep the Blues alive tonight in the fourth game of their best-of-seven semi-final series against Boston Bruins who have outscored St. Louis 23-5 in winning the first three games.

Arbour hesitated to make any excuses for his team's losses against the Bruins but after questioning he admitted his club has more injuries than a team should have in going against the powerful Bruins.

"Yes, a lot of our guys are hurting," Arbour said. "I won't say who."

Obviously, his goaltenders, Jacques Caron and Ernie Wakely, were ailing sufficiently to recall Peter McDuffe from Denver Spurs of the Western Hockey League for Sunday's third game.

The Blues have also been missing the belligerance of defencemen Barclay and Bob Plager due to leg injuries, and centre Garry Unger, their big shooter, has been a big disappointment because of a wrist injury that the Blues have tried to play down.

"But there are a lot of other factors to consider, too," said Arbour. "There had to be a big let-down after our series with Minnesota.

"We started off on the wrong foot against the Bruins and we just haven't been able to come back."

Oil Kings, Pats Lead Semi-Finals

Goalkeeping isn't the reason Calgary Centennials an Brandon Wheat Kings face elimination from Western Canada Hockey League playoffs.

Both clubs went down to defeat Monday night despite receiving great goaltending in the fifth games of the Western and Eastern Division semi-finals.

John Rogers, Brian Ogilvie and Terry Smith fired goals by Centennial goalie John Davidson as Edmonton Oil Kings shaded the West Division league leaders 3-2 in Medicine Hat before just 1,703 fans. The game was moved out of Calgary because of prior commitments at the Corral.

Regina and Edmonton hold 3-2 series leads going into tonight's game in Edmonton and Wednesday's game in Winnipeg.

Davidson, who faced 33 shots, was brilliant while Doug Soetaert in goal for Edmonton handled just 19 shots. Ron Homenuke and Doug Horbul scored for Calgary.

Brandon goalie Dave McLelland also had an outstanding night blocking 34 shots.

Stars Sign Ted Harris

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — General manager Wren Blair of Minnesota North Stars says he has signed veteran defenceman Ted Harris to a three-year contract with the Natinal Hockey League club.

Harris was reported to have been also negotiating with Winnipeg Jets of the new World Hockey Association.

Ron Cooke Selected For McGinnis Award

Ron Cooke of CFB Esquimalt received the most-valuable player award at the seventh annual Stuffy McGinnis Hockey League trophy presentations.

Ron Toffey of Empress Paint collected the sportsmanship award and Dave Webber, the league co-ordinator, was presented with the President's Trophy for outstanding effort on behalf of the league.

Others collecting silverware were Ken Walz of Ingraham Buckaroos (high playoff scorer), Brian O'Niell of Stockers North Americans (top goalie) and Dennis Ferrill of Stockers (top scorer).

Stockers won the Humber Brothers Trophy, emblematic of the league title, and Buckaroos captured the Stuffy McGinnis Memorial (playoff) Trophy.

FINAL STARTS WEDNESDAY

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Knicks and Los Angeles Lakers will open their best-of-seven National Basketball Association championship playoff series Wednesday night in Los Angeles.

Second game of the series also will be played in Los Angeles, Sunday, April 30. The teams then will travel to New York for the next two games, May 3 and May 5.

(Wednesday's game will be telecast on Channel 4 at 7 p.m. Victoria time).

Golf-Loving Linesman Has Faith in Bruins

Malcolm Ashford, Victoria's donation to the National Hockey League's refereeing staff, has to rate as a realistic individual.

The last time we saw him on television, Malcolm was working the lines in the second game of the Chicago-New York series. That was last Tuesday.

Friday he showed up at Cedar Hill for a game of golf.

"Aren't you going to work any more Stanley Cup games?" Cedar Hill professional Bill Goldsworthy asked.

"Oh, sure!" replied Ashford. "I'm scheduled to work the fifth game of the Boston-St. Louis series.

"So I came home . . ."

Vaughan Trapp is heading for a new post in Vancouver, and he would like nothing better than to win the Times Vancouver Island Open before he pulls down his shingle off the Oak Bay pro shop.

The 28-year-old Oak Bay assistant will join Bob Cox at the Pacific Golf Centre next month. Part of the deal includes salary and expenses when he takes off to play in tournaments.

The change in allegiance will be officially noted May 27-28 when Trapp returns, with Cox, to play in the Cedar Hill Open.

Former Victorian Dick Munn, now the resident professional at Point Grey, fashioned a great comeback to qualify for the Vancouver Sun match-play tournament.

Munn had his doubts before the final round in the 36-hole qualifying test. For one thing, an opening-round 78 left him "about 70th" in the searching order for one of 32 berths. Also, he said he "hadn't been playing well" and, until last week, had never played the University course.

Munn hit the par-71 course with a 69 Sunday to make the grade with a 147 total, one less than the cutoff figure. He shared the day's low gross honors with host pro Ron Willey and Langara amateur Bob Mitchell. Munn might have checked in with a 68 but for the fact that he three-putted the 18th.

Doug Reid, scoring 69-70—139, won medallist honors.

Former Victorian Dave Donaldson, in good position after an opening-round 75, missed out by blowing to a 77 Sunday. Other notable qualifying-round victims included Al Kennedy, Tom Moryson, Finn Sorenson and Scott Keenlyside.

University of Oregon, sparked by Vancouver's Doug Roxburgh and helped by Carl Schwantje of Victoria, retained the Pacific-8 Conference golf title by finishing 24 pops ahead of Washington Huskies . . . Roxburgh led all scorers with a two-under-par 208 for the 54 holes.

PLANNING COMEBACK in professional baseball is Jim Bouton, former 20-game winner with New York Yankees and author of controversial book Ball Four. Bouton, a 33-year-old righthander, has asked for leave of absence from sportscasting job he assumed after being placed on voluntary retirement list by Houston Astros in August, 1970. He plans to start comeback with Pittsfield, Mass., in Class AA Eastern League.

Norwich City To Move Up

LONDON (Reuter) — Norwich City won promotion to the English League's First Division for the first time in their 67-year history when it beat Orient 2-1 here Monday night to clinch the Second Division league title.

Goals by Ken Foggo and Graham Paddon were enough to sink Orient and give Norwich an unassailable lead at the top of the table.

With only one match left, Norwich is five points ahead of second-place Millwall, which has two games to play. Millwall is one point ahead of Birmingham City with Queen's Park Rangers another point back. Birmingham and Queen's Park both have one match in hand on Millwall.

Third Division leaders Aston Villa drew 1-1 with Mansfield Town to clinch promotion to the Second Division.

In the only First Division match played Monday, Chelsea beat Stoke City 2-0 with goals from Alan Hudson and Steve Garland.

MEDAL-WINNERS OUSTED IN FIRST-ROUND MATCH

Tournament medallists Marge Thorburn and Darlaine Woodburn were among the casualties Monday as first-round matches in the annual Victoria and District women's foursomes golf tournament were played at the Glen Meadows course.

In a battle between Royal Colwood clubmates, Terese Todd and Hazel Burt defeated the qualifying-round leaders to advance to today's quarter-final contests at the Colwood layout.

Gorge Vale pairs chalked up three victories as the duos of Joan Scott and Jean Thornton, Agnes Castle and Flora Clark, and Cis Reid and Bea Lundgren survived the first round of match play.

Also remaining in the chase for the championship with triumphs Monday were Edna Hicks and Kay Tribe of Uplands, Muriel Stiles and Bec Finley of Cowichan, Daphne Dagg and Edna Hay of Glen Meadows and the Colwood combination of Mary Butler and Kay Rickinson.

First flight winners Monday were Doreen Brundson and Marj Lupton, Jean Stokes and Helen Johnston, Joan Perks and Kay Craig and Dolly Williamson and Florence Corbett (all of Colwood); Shirley Naysmith and Peggy Matthews, Bessie Wilson and Evan Mackie (Gorge Vale); Kay Liddell and Bea Breffitt (Uplands) and Trudy Young and Rose Creak (Ardmore).

Four Players Score Triples

Four players emerged as triple winners Sunday in the finals of the three-day Vancouver Island junior badminton championships at Brentwood Community Hall.

Brenda Cameron and Angus Izard of the Racquet Club of Victoria each won or shared three under-15 titles.

Miss Cameron won the girls' singles crown, shared the distaff doubles title with Nicki Winter and partnered Izard to victory in the mixed doubles final.

In addition to the mixed doubles laurels, Izard won singles honors and shared the boys' doubles victory with Don Woodland.

Diane Sluggett of Brentwood captured the under-17 girls' singles title, shared the doubles crown with Geraldine Pugh and then stepped up an age class to partner clubmate Gerry Mounce for a victory in the under-19 mixed doubles final.

Mounce, the other triple winner, also captured the singles event and shared the doubles title with Dan Woods.

Results of finals:

UNDER-15

Boys' singles: Angus Izard (RCV) defeated Don Woodland (RCV), 15-12, 15-3.

Boys' doubles: Dan Woods and Gerry Mounce (Brentwood) defeated Phil Wong and Peter Michielin (Esquimalt), 15-3, 15-6.

Mixed doubles: Diane Sluggett and Garry Mounce (Brentwood) defeated Sue Metcalfe and John Anderson (RCV), 15-4, 15-9.

Island Juniors Win Rugby Test

Vancouver Island all-stars used some speedy running and solid tackling to hammer Lower Mainland rivals 27-4 Sunday in a junior (under-19) representative rugby match at Macdonald Park.

Not so fortunate were the Island colts (under-17), beaten 22-6 by Lower Mainland in a preliminary struggle.

Both contests were for B.C. titles.

Tom Lippa, Chuck Shergold, Chris Spicer, Dennis Carson and Norm Shaw scored trys for the Island juniors while Chris Mills dropped a goal and booted two conversions. Bill Treloar scored the lone Mainland try as the visitors fell behind 16-4 at half time.

Island forwards, sparked by Dale Milford of Nanaimo, completely dominated the match. Other top-notch individual performers for the Island juniors were captain Lippa, Mills and fullback John Graham.

Centre three-quarter David Whyte paced the Mainland colts to victory with a try, a penalty goal and three converts. Mike Taylor and Terry Reid added single trys to the Mainland total while Graham Taylor kicked a drop goal.

THE NEW GOODYEAR POLYSTEEL* TIRE

STRENGTH OF STEEL CORD BELTS, SMOOTHNESS OF POLYESTER CORD, IN A GREAT LONG-WEARING TIRE.

This tire is running over dozens of vicious hardened steel drill bits. A match of steel against steel. And the tire keeps on going without loss of air.

We build it tough with two belts of steel cord to resist impact and penetration in the tread area.

And so you don't feel you're riding on steel, we add a flexible polyester cord body for smoothness.

Chances are, you'll never run over drill bits with your tires. But if you're running on Goodyear Custom Power Cushion Polysteel tires, think of some of the nasty things you could run over—and come away as though it never happened.

The new Custom Power Cushion Polysteel tire.

Ask for it by name. It's only from Goodyear.

Tennis Path Longer

Winners of the Victoria section of the B.C. Festival of Sports tennis championships will have an extra step to climb this year.

Instead of collecting berths in the provincial championships at Vancouver, like last year, winners of the six city events will advance to a Vancouver Island regional final in Nanaimo, May 20 and 21.

Men's and women's singles as well as doubles events will be played at Oak Bay Tennis Club during the week-long tourney, which starts Saturday.

Junior (under 18 on Jan. 1) boys' and girls' singles are slated for the Racquet Club of Victoria.

Port Alberni, Nanaimo, Duncan, Campbell River, Courtenay and Comox will also be represented at the Island tourney.

Entry deadline for the city event is 5 p.m. Thursday. Entries may be filed with the Oak Bay Tennis Club, Racquet Club or by telephoning John Nichol at 477-8586.

$165,000 for the Young

17 Groups (Including Peppy's Parksters) To Receive Summer Cash

The federal government is subsidizing the youth of Greater Victoria this summer to the tune of more than $165,000.

The government's Opportunities For Youth program has announced grants to 17 Greater Victoria groups of young people. The grants will pay wages and buy equipment for various projects to last through this summer.

Today's announcement is only part of Ottawa's helping hand to the young people. More grants are expected soon.

In total, about 3,000 projects will be financed across the country by the government, from a pool of 19,000 applications. About 29,000 young Canadians will be employed under the program, using $34 million of the federal money.

The Opportunities For Youth program is part of a wider government scheme to employ young people through the summer. About $85 million has been put aside altogether for this purpose, involving the Secretary of State, the Treasury Board, the Public Service Commission, and the departments of manpower and immigration, national health and welfare and national defence.

The grants announced so far:

—$11,590 to the Cool-Aid farm project in Saanich.

—$9,265 for production of a puppetry program to travel around the lower Island.

—$8,680 for a marketplace for local artists and craftsmen.

—$8,261 for an activity program for disadvantaged children between the ages of 7 and 12.

—$17,500 to the Bastion summer youth theatre, employing 14 youths in a theatrical project in the capital region.

—$13,970 to a community action theatre group, intended to provide information about poverty in dramatic presentations to community groups.

—$12,340 to a Victoria women's project providing a drop-in centre. Research will be done into health, social and cultural problems of women.

—$8,130 for an archaeological excavation at Esquimalt Lagoon, designed to assist the provincial museum in its study of the cultural history of Victoria.

—$10,075 to Victoria Self-Help, a drop-in centre for former mental patients seeking a meaningful role in the community.

—$5,553 to Peppy's Parksters, a group of youths presenting weekly puppet shows at 10 playgrounds in the city, children participating.

—$5,790 for a group using drama sessions as a therapeutic technique with handicapped children. Video tapes and films will be made.

—$6,980 for a free odd-job service for people unable to do the work themselves, called Man About the House.

—$9,070 for arts and crafts instruction in the James Bay community scout hall and day camp trips for children 8-15 years.

—$9,645 for research into community television in Greater Victoria.

—$9,900 for a project acquainting low and fixed income groups with rehabilitative resources available, including community home visits.

Grants to other Opportunities For Youth projects on Vancouver Island and coastal areas total more than $280,000, including the largest of all those listed so far — $21,600 to a group to 15 people doing salvage archaeology in Prince Rupert harbor.

SECOND SECTION

Ottawa Blamed For 'Foul-Up' In Job Scheme

A "fouled-up" federal government press release is causing Canada Manpower officials headaches for students looking for summer jobs.

The press release was circulated at a press conference Thursday night in the Bay Street Armory.

In it, it said 130 students would be employed at CFB Esquimalt this summer, beginning May 1.

The rush was on.

High school principals, anxious to help their students, put the news over intercoms.

Eager students and their parents hurried to the Canada Manpower office, only to be told the jobs were filled weeks ago.

What went wrong?

A check with Canada Manpower discloses that the hot news from Ottawa was given to the local press three weeks after the scheme was put into operation.

An official said today, "They've got it fouled up, there's no quota left, the jobs were taken by university students some time ago."

He said that both high school students and their parents have been "complaining bitterly" when told the release was no longer valid.

He added, "We run into this all the time."

Eric Fleming, Manpower representative on the University of Victoria campus, confirmed that government officials moved faster than their publicity men.

"Things come out from Ottawa under general direction but they also come over telex. We got authority three weeks ago and went into high gear immediately. We've sent more than 130 students for consideration."

Tom Crane, chief of civilian personnal at the base, agreed that all jobs were being filled through the campus office.

BIDS THURSDAY ON SCHOOL PROJECTS

Tenders will be opened Thursday at the offices of the Greater Victoria school board for two school building projects.

One is to build a new science laboratory and make alterations to the home economics area of Central junior high.

The other is modernization of science facilities, upgrading of lighting and fire safety and alteration of classrooms to create an open area at S. J. Willis junior high.

Soft Drink Price Unchanged Here

An increase in the price of soft drinks Monday on the mainland and, apparently, through most of the province hasn't yet been seen in Greater Victoria.

But that pleasant situation may not last for long.

The hike, of one cent per bottle on six-packs was taken by the major soft drink companies and was attributed to rising costs. Ted Harrison, general manager of Wometco Ltd. in Vancouver, bottlers of five major brands, said "The prices of sugar, bottles, trucks—everything we use—have gone up" since the last increase, in 1970.

Locally, Crystal Springs Beverages manager Barry Brinkworth said his company hasn't yet looked into the possibility of an increase, but he confirmed rising costs. "A lot of our costs have soared, sugar is up about $4 a bag in the past year."

On the basis of that, he said, it would not be unreasonable to anticipate an increase in retail price here.

The other Victoria bottlers, Goodwill Bottling Ltd., withheld comment. Manager Bill Sherwood said simply he had nothing to say on the hike.

Goodwill bottles Coca-Cola, Sprite, Fanta, Tab and Fresca.

There are two warehouses in Victoria handling soft drinks bottled on the mainland, Canada Dry and Victoria Beverages. But so far neither has received instructions about a price increase. So for the present, at least, the old prices hold.

ONE WOMAN WAS HURT and damage was estimated at $15,000 in a fire which burned out the second floor of a shops-and-apartment building at 741-745 Goldstream today. The building is across the street from the Langford Fire Hall, and 28 volunteers answered the call at 6:45 a.m. Mrs. Arnold Goudie, who suffered cut hands and arms when she leaped through a window in her upstairs suite, was treated and released from hospital. BAIL, DRUG SCENE ON CHIEFS' AGENDA

Recent bail reforms, drug abuse, restricted and prohibited weapons and provincial police cars will be high on the agenda May 3 and 4 when approximately 40 police chiefs gather here for a conference of the Western Chief Constables' Association.

The conference will include representatives from the four western provinces and such specialized forces as railway police and harbors board police.

Victoria's Chief Jack Gregory, chairman of the conference, said today all sessions will be closed to the press.

"It's just that a closed session lends itself to a freer expression of thought," he explained.

But following the sessions, he said, delegates will be entirely free to speak with reporters, and "are certainly under no restrictions" concerning publicity.

He said he will, as chairman of the session, be willing to meet with reporters whenever possible during the meet.

Ask the Times

Monday Ask the Times quoted "our resident financial analyst" as saying sweepstakes winnings under new federal tax legislation are taxable.

Today "Our resident financial analyst" is on the end of a broom in the back shop.

And in fact, sweepstakes winnings remain non-taxable. On Page 1 of an information book published by the Department of National Revenue following passage of the new legislation, it states that "Gains from 'windfalls' such as sweepstakes, gambling and other games of chance are not subject to tax."

Builder Claims Loss From Zoning Switch

Victoria contractor Hans Hartwig says he paid more than he would have done for a valuable piece of downtown property — because city council failed to give sufficient public warning that it was changing its zoning bylaw.

In a letter to council, Hartwig says he met with the president of Avis Rent A Car in Vancouver March 4 and bought the Avis-owned site in downtown Victoria, at the corner of Douglas and Humboldt.

The purchase price was based on the existing bylaw at that time, which allowed development of 94,000 square feet on the property.

'FLABBERGASTED'

Hartwig says from the meeting he went to Toronto and then for a three-week holiday. On his return he was "flabbergasted" to be told council had changed the bylaw allowing development of only 39,000 square feet.

In the letter he states he agrees with council's reasoning that over-development is harmful to the appearance of the city and undesirable.

But he argues that council should have given at least a few months' warning of the impending change to the zoning bylaw, "to avoid financial losses for citizens that either own or intend to purchase or develop downtown property."

City council adopted its new zoning bylaw limiting the size and height of new buildings in downtown Victoria on March 27.

The bylaw limits absolute height of a building to 140 feet or 14 storeys. The bulk of new buildings is limited to a height to floor-space ratio of three to one, and heights at the property line are limited to 30 feet.

City planner Geoff Greenhalgh said today the procedure for dealing with zoning bylaw changes is more explicit and longer than for any other bylaw amendment.

The procedure laid down by provincial statute includes requirements for both newspaper advertising of the proposed changes and a public hearing, he said.

A hint of impending moves to limit the size of new downtown construction was given by Mayor Peter Pollen early this year in his inaugural speech. Aldermen approved preparation of the zoning bylaw amendment last February.

Is That How You Learned It in Shool?

ON A SUMMER DAY MY love and I happened to be refueling our car at a service station a few miles south of Nanaimo when a travel van with Maryland plates pulled in on the other side of the pump island.

"How far are we from Nannyamo?" the driver asked.

The garageman told him, not bothering to correct the mispronunciation.

"That's the seventh today," he said to us later, "and there'll be another bunch tomorrow. You get used to it. Anyway, you never can tell how people will react if you put them right."

Quite true. As a confirmed mispronouncer, I have more than once been considerably jarred to learn that my version of a word can fetch snickers from the better-informed.

That American from Maryland wouldn't dream of calling his state's famed river the POTomac. But I'd still be bearing down hard on the first syllable if my wife hadn't finally set me straight.

"It's PotOmac," she informed me, "with the emphasis on the second 'O'."

Place names can be rough on the stranger. Even in Canada East, which really should know better I've often heard one of our bread-basket provinces referred to as SasKATCHOO-on.

For me, though, and also for my wife, our native tongue has pitfalls of another sort.

As children, we were both plunging readers who would whip through any book we could get our hands on. Correct pronunciation was the least of our concerns. We were reading for interest, and any word that created a problem could get out of our way or be trampled.

The result was that between haste to absorb, and the trickiness of the English language, each of us grew up with a set of stubborn misconceptions tagging determinedly along.

Some of these we shared. Take 'misled,' for instance: an easy, two-syllable word that nobody should go wrong on. You split it down the middle and place equal weight on each half.

But we didn't know that, and since neither was in a position to untangle the other, we persisted in error until one of those people who are everlastingly setting others straight undertook to correct us.

Today, even though made aware that 'misled' shouldn't be pronounced 'myzeld,' we secretly prefer this unorthodox version.

In addition to such mutual manglings, we have our individual stumbling blocks.

I know that if Win says 'character,' she can be expected to lead off properly by sounding the first two letters as 'K,. I'm also aware, because she once nearly split me by admitting the foible, that in her mind the 'ch' is still pronounced as in 'charm.'

Merriment over others' linguistic weaknesses can be dangerous, however, especially for someone who is entirely capable of going astray with quay and chasm. Luckily for me, those weasel words rarely turn up in conversation.

Such difficulties could be avoided by consulting any good dictionary when in doubt as to how a word should be spoken as well as spelled.

But that takes time, and dictionaries have a way of not being at hand when needed. I expect that most of us who occasionally trip up when we apply our tongues to certain words will continue to do so until the pluggers for Basic English have their way.

After that, no bother; spelling will be simpler, and words will be spoken as spelled.

Meanwhile, if you have an urge to soften the 'i' and sound the 's' in 'island,' take comfort. You are not alone.

Which brings us to the classic putdown administered by a fellow who was pounced on because he insisted on pronouncing 'schedule' as 'skedule' rather than 'shedule'.

"Interesting," he said mildly to the heckler. "Is that how you learned it in shool?"

Talk on Media Closed to Media

Jim Hume, secretary to the Capital Regional District Board and the board's information officer, gave a lunch-time talk today on the "State of the media in Victoria."

The talk, to members of the Victoria Electric Club, was closed to media representatives.

Night Owl Gizmo Daytime Dodo

Take heart, all you drivers who sit there fuming day after day, waiting for the green which never seems to come at the Douglas-Hillside-Government lights.

Help may be on the way.

Victoria traffic engineer Dave Campbell said Monday the gizmo which operates the lights at the busy junction — it's called a Traffic-Actuated Volume Density Controller — is obsolete and his department hopes to replace it next year with more efficient equipment.

Campbell, who was conducting a seminar on Victoria's traffic control system for municipal officials from across Canada, said the present controller is at least 12 years old.

It reacts to traffic patterns as they develop, he said, but when it is working to capacity — as it is in the morning and evening rush periods — it switches to fixed time operation.

This means each lane has a fixed, equal time for traffic movement. It also means that if the hapless driver strikes an amber he has a full two and a half minutes to wait for the cycle to work through.

"It's only in off-peak hours that you see this equipment working properly," Campbell said. "It works beautifully at 2 a.m."

When Victoria planning committee chairman Mike Young asked why the equipment was still used, Campbell said there would be a proposal in next year's budget to buy more efficient equipment.

With the new equipment, if a gap of a few seconds developed between vehicles in a lane moving on green, the lights would be switched automatically to another lane, he explained.

Inquest Jury Lays No Blame In Death of Elderly Woman

A six-member coroner's jury, following a marathon inquest of five separate sittings early today, assigned no blame in the death of an 85-year-old woman March 2 at Queen Victoria General Hospital, three days after she was admitted for treatment of a nosebleed.

Mrs. Charlotte Ann Muddle of 344 Vincent, Saanich, died of natural causes, specifically asphyxia caused by the nosebleed, the jury verdict stated. It also cited arteriosclerosis and high blood pressure as contributing factors.

The jury exonerated both the staff of Queen Victoria General and three practising physicians who attended Mrs. Muddle during her fatal illness, saying no negligence could be assigned.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre, in a detailed charge to the jury before it adjourned to consider a verdict, had specified that a finding of negligence would be within the authority of the hearing.

TESTIMONY 'DISTURBING'

He also made reference to testimony offered by Queen Victoria staff pathologist Dr. John Marsden, which he called "disturbing".

Marsden told the jury a week ago that an autopsy showed several external signs of hemorrhage and he was unable to explain why they had not been detected by hospital staff before the woman's death.

He also testified the woman's entire digestive tract — gullet, stomach, small intestine and large intestine — was filled and distended by blood.

He speculated the blood had entered her system as a result of post-nasal bleeding (into the back of her mouth and hence into her gullet).

On March 9, a week after the woman's death, Marsden stated in a letter to the coroner that death in hospital from a nosebleed was unusual.

GOT ATTENTION

Other testimony heard during the five sittings, including that of Dr. Wah Ting Wong, who first saw Mrs. Muddle and had her admitted to hospital Feb. 28; Dr. Gerald May, her regular physician who attended her during her stay at Queen Victoria; and specialist Dr. R. C. Pronger who was called in to attend her by May, suggested she had received much attention her first two days in hospital, and on the third day she seemed to be improved.

Dr. J. J. Nugent, an intern at Queen Victoria who was in attendance when the woman died, testified, Wednesday night that in her final few minutes late March 1 and early March 2 when he was attempting to keep her alive, he observed the packing put in her nostril to contain the bleeding had been dislodged.

"I could see a good portion of it — at least half of it and possibly more — in the back of her mouth," Nugent said.

SAW NO BLEEDING

Miss W. A. Gillanders, a practical nurse, testified at the same sitting of the inquest that she had seen the patient at 10:45 p.m. and at 11:15 p.m., shortly before the crisis during which Mrs. Muddle died.

The woman appeared to be resting comfortably, Miss Gillanders said, and "there was no apparent internal bleeding".

Coroner St. Jorre Monday night in his charge to the jury made reference to testimony of Dr. May about hospital staffing shortages in B.C. but no acknowledgement of this was made in the verdict.

"Everyone knows the restrictions on hospital staffing in this province today," May had said. "I don't think there is enough staff at any hospital in this province."

St. Jorre suggested May's testimony, because he had made no specific reference to the staffing situation at Queen Victoria General Hospital, was contradictory.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A crime which the judge said is becoming a late-20th-century phenomenon netted a visiting Californcan a $75 fine when he appeared in provincial court Monday on a charge of theft of telecommunications services.

Steven Rex Wechsier, 18, of Long Beach, pleaded guilty to calling his girl-friend back home Saturday by using a phoney credit card number.

He was picked up at a phone booth at Pandora and Belmont after police were tipped by a B.C. Tel supervisor.

In court Monday, the accused told Judge William Ostler he had made two earlier phone calls to Long Beach before he was caught on the third.

He said he was making the admission because he wanted to "come clean." The judge said it was likely the admission was made because Wechsier wanted to avoid later prosecution for the other two offences.

Ostler said a "real pipeline" was developing along which phoney credit card numbers were being passed to out-of-town visitors and new arrivals. Wechsier said he had been given the number by a hitchhiker he had picked up.

Vaughan Paul Barnard, 20, of 3225 Shelbourne, was sentenced to 30 days in jail on a charge of attempted false pretences.

Barnard was arrested when he tried to buy clothing worth $47.18 from Simpsons-Sears, 3190 Shelbourne, March 18 with a phoney credit card.

"The shoplifting situation in this city is bad enough without the stores being attacked by teams," Ostler said in fining two women for a combined theft attempt.

Gladys Lyseng, 49, of 471 Ardersier, and Gurtrude May Heinekey, 47, of 3949 Cedar Hill, were each fined $250. They pleaded guilty to lifting ham and cheese worth $2.16 from Canada Safeway, 3958 Shelbourne, April 10.

Court was told Mrs. Heinekey attempted to shield Mrs. Lyseng while the latter put the items in her purse.

Mrs. Heinekey said it had "started out as a joke and wound up a disaster."

In traffic court, Judge E. F. N. Robinson jailed a Work Point Barracks man for 20 days on two charges involving drinking and driving the same night.

Texas Marvin Tobias, 22, was found by police asleep in his car on Yates Saturday night, an open bottle of beer at his feet.

Tobias was taken to Fisgard Street police headquarters, where a breath-test reading of .17 was obtained. He was cautioned against driving any more that night and advised to take a cab home.

Forty-five minutes later, he was stopped for driving his car erratically on the Johnson Street bridge.

In addition to the jail term, he was prohibited from driving for six months.

Small Gain in Budget Trimming

A modest $68,900 — less than a half mill — was trimmed from the 1972 Saanich budget proposals in council's first detailed financial review lasting more than three hours Monday night.

The budget-cutting will continue tonight.

Two weeks ago deputy controller-treasurer R. F. Broughton submitted a first draft budget for $6.89 million, representing a rate of 46.94 mills. The rate in 1971 was 40¼ mills for general and debt purposes.

Senior staff was instructed to review the document and find ways to reduce the tentative increase by two mills without jeopardizing the essential road and drainage capital programs.

A combination of reduced expenditure and increased revenues as outlined by administrator John Tribe produced a net cutback of $204,560 which can be stretched to $308,000 if council agrees to taking $106,000 from tax sale land reserves to make the final payment on the McRae estate.

The saving would then be just over two mills," Tribe reported.

The mill this year represents $146,775.

One of the most time-consuming parts of budget consideration, the list of requested grants, was deferred for review later.

Police and fire department items were given careful scrutiny, the former being generally approved after discussion although an increased expenditure of $180,825 to $1.25 million is proposed.

Additional manpower and higher operating costs were cited in police estimates.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said the higher salary bill — at $832,000 compared to $727,500 last year — was "originated largely in Vancouver."

But he saw no way of reducing the over-all amount "without hampering operations of the department."

Saanich police were "without parallel in the community" for the respect they earn, even though the workload has expanded beyond the imaginings of old hands in the force, he said.

They attribute "many, many more breaking and enterings, daylight burglaries' and other crimes to the drug situation, besides dealing with heavier traffic loads due to population increase.

Four more civilians were accepted to operate the police radio network and free trained policemen for protective and investigative work.

One police estimate which decreased was the clothing allowance, from $14,930 in 1971 to $12,000, due to a change to windbreaker-style uniforms which are cheaper.

Court operating costs will be higher, going from $128,000 last year to an expected $146,400.

Council agreed to hire an additional clerk and four new firemen as a means of redressing imbalance for existing operations and to prepare for the expected new fire truck next year.

The five will be hired to start July 1, raising the salary bill from $620,000 to $706,900, which is almost $10,000 less than the draft amount which figured on eight new firemen and a clerk.

Grits Broke Faith—Tories

OTTAWA (CP) — As top Liberal election planners met in secret session Monday to plot their strategy, Commons opposition spokesmen challenged the government to fight an election on economic issues.

The Liberal cabinet, said Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, "has broken its mandate and has broken its faith with the Canadian people and it is high time it went."

Retorted New Democrat Leader David Lewis: "It is clear that the leader of the Opposition is preparing to appeal to the Canadian people for a chance to do exactly the same thing as the government has done . . . and of that we have had enough."

The leaders were debating a Conservative motion condemning the government for not encouraging investment or generating enough jobs.

Behind closed doors, meanwhile, the Liberal national campaign committee discussed details such as slogans, pamphlets and posters.

PM GIVES NO HINT

Although Liberal MPs—especially Quebecers—and Prime Minister Trudeau's own advisers have been urging a June election, Mr. Trudeau himself gave no hint when it would come.

Heading the strategy session were campaign co-chairmen Robert Andras, corporate affairs minister, and Jean Marchand, regional expansion minister. Provincial directors, headquarters workers and outside advisers also were at the meeting.

Some sources expected Mr. Trudeau to name the date at the Liberal caucus meeting Wednesday. That follows a cabinet meeting scheduled for today.

In the Commons the Conservative non-confidence motion was defeated 109 to 78, the Liberals downing the three opposition parties.

An NDP amendment citing a government failure to fairly redistribute income was defeated 109 to 70.

SAYS LOSS ADMITTED

Mr. Stanfield said the government had admitted losing its fight to produce jobs and economic growth by resorting to winter employment plans such as the Local Initiatives Program and the Opportunities for Youth summer job program.

The programs heralded ever-larger government expenditures intended not to spur growth but to "prevent the governmental system, or at least the system of this government, from collapsing around its head."

He said the government "has drifted, it is drifting now, and it will continue to drift as long as it is able to cling to power."

He called for a long-range strategy to include reduction of regional disparity and encouragement of investment.

EMPLOYMENT FIRST

But Mr. Mahoney said that there are still too many people without jobs, and employment is the government's first priority.

Mr. Lewis, referring to Mr. Stanfield's remarks, said he was no more impressed by the "promises of a phony incentive society" than he was by the promises of a "phony just society" that he heard from the Liberals in the 1968 election campaign.

"Canadians have watched the same play for over a century. We have learned that merely changing the cast of characters does not improve the play.

"Whether the lines are read with Liberal arrogance or Tory incompetence, it still remains a bad play for the life and the people of Canada."

He condemned the Conservative proposals as a continuation of a "corporate welfare program which has produced few jobs and even greater inequality in our society."

Adrien Lambert (SC—Bellechasse) said the country's economic problems boil down to a question of credit.

With easier credit, consumers could buy more, satisfying their own wants and producing jobs.

Gimmicks, Lies And Deceit Vs. 'The Code'

TORONTO (CP) — The sign at the entrance to the discount service station read: "10 per cent off gas."

One customer paid the regular price and received coupons to the value of 10 per cent of his purchase—but the coupons could be applied only to service, not gas.

A newspaper advertisement said customers at a grocery store could buy a few things and get a "free item." It didn't say the customer had to submit trading stamps, to the value of $5, in order to pick up the "free" item.

The customers were not very happy, and neither was the Advertising Standards Council, which found the grocery store and service station owners had broken the Canadian Code of Advertising Standards.

These two were among 16 cases of infringements on the code in the first quarter of 1972, when the council investigated 74 complaints.

In the 16 cases where infringements were proven, the council issued letters of rebuke and received promises of improved, and more honest, advertising.

The council, an independent arbitration body established by the Canadian advertising industry, is made up of 16 voluntary representatives of consumers, advertisers and businessmen.

It administers the Canadian Code of Advertising Standards, but has no powers of enforcement other than persuasion and its influence in the advertising industry.

The council said in a statement that in the last half of 1971 it dealt with 233 complaints and recorded 51 code violations.

Complaints have concerned misleading advertisements in newspapers, on radio and television, display cards, handbills, packages and in catalogues. They dealt with advertising of dairy products, draperies, new cars, spark plugs, credit unions, soft drinks, record club offers, housing developments, television sets and clothing.

A credit union which warned its customers that everyone else in the consumer credit business was unduly costly and unfair to consumers was told the council considered the ads in violation of the unfair disparagement clause of the advertising code. The advertiser disagreed but discontinued the ad and promised the theme would not be repeated.

PUBLIC BELIEF IN STRIKES ON DECLINE

By THE CANADIAN INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION

While the majority of Canadians believe that the right to strike in an inherent part of our democracy, and a fundamental right for workers, the proportion of those who hold this view has dropped steadily over the past decades. In 1951, almost two-thirds of the public (65%) said that workers should have this right. Today the level is 58%. Over the same time period the proportion who say it should not be considered as a fundamental right has risen from about a fifth of the population, to a quarter. Indecision on the matter has increased somewhat.

As would be expected adults in union homes are more likely to believe in the right to strike (67%) and those in non-union homes, where a small majority (54%) hold this belief.

Adherents of the main political parties do not vary much in their attitudes on this question. Conservatives are least favorable (57%) with the NDP the most favorable (65%). Liberals are in between these extremes at 61%.

A recent Gallup study found that, today, 65% of Canadians believe that the current strikes are having a very serious effect on our economy, while another 26% consider it to be fairly serious.

Gallup has put the same question to a national sample of adults in 1951, and 1963, as was used for today's study:

"Do you think that workers should or should not have the right to strike?"

The table below shows the downward trend since 1951, in a belief in the right to strike, together with attitudes today in union and non-union homes, and those who, today, would vote for the main political parties.

Chi-Chi, 15, Near End

LONDON (AP) — Chi-Chi, the London Zoo's giant panda, has been withdrawn from exhibition and her keepers fear she may die soon.

Chi-Chi was the leading panda in the West until two youngsters from China, Hsing-Hsing and Ling-Ling, arrived in Washington a week ago. But now she is approaching her 15th birthday. By panda standards she is an old woman.

Pandas in captivity never have lived more than 15 or 16 years. London zoo officials say her days are numbered.

"The old girl just seems to want to sleep more and more," said a zoo spokesman. "For the last three or four weeks she's been spending more and more time asleep."

Chi-Chi entered the international spotlight in 1966 when zoo officials attempted to mate her to her nearest, most suitable partner, An-An, an inmate of Moscow Zoo.

First, Chi-Chi visited Russia. Then An-An travelled to England. But Chi-Chi always spurned An-An's advances.

Visitors attracted by Chi-Chi's ill-starred "romance" flocked to London Zoo. But recently they have peered in vain into the panda's enclosure. She won't come out of her den.

Alta. Proposes Taxing Oil Still in Ground

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta's Progressive Conservative government, unwilling to break contracts which limit royalty rates, came up with a new idea Monday for getting more money from the oil industry — a tax on crude oil reserves still in the ground.

The oil industry normally accounts for more than one-quarter of provincial revenues.

The proposed tax on "the assessed value of the right to all minerals in the province" — both on freehold and Crown land — is designed to raise $50 million to $90 million in 1973.

No rate of taxation is mentioned in the "tentative natural resources revenue plan" outlined in a position paper tabled in the legislature by Bill Dickie, minister of mines and minerals.

There will be no change in the existing oil royalty structure, established 10 years ago by the previous Social Credit administration.

WON'T HIKE RATES

Last week, Premier Peter Lougheed said the Conservatives could not increase royalty rates for the majority of producing wells because the previous government had signed long-term leases which limit the maximum royalty on crude oil to 16 2-3 per cent of gross production. He said it might be after 1980 before the bulk of production could be freed from the maximum royalty restrictions.

Stan Milner, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of Canada, said the proposed tax would severely limit the economic growth of the province.

Milner said the association was "quite startled" over the amount of money the government proposes to raise through the tax.

If the proposal becomes a reality, he said, "a negative reaction will develop, severely limiting the economic growth of the province".

Quotas Studied

EDMONTON (CP) — The University of Alberta decided Monday to seek legal advice on its proposal to impose quotas on the number of students from Hong Kong who could be allowed to enter the engineering faculty.

University president Dr. Max Wyman said the university's solicitor will be asked whether such a move could even be "passed and enforced."

Counsel for Indians

REGINA (CP) — Four court counsellors of Indian ancestry will be present when Indians appear in court, starting next year, Attorney-General Roy Romanow told the legislature Monday.

The counsellors would be available in areas where there would be large numbers of Indians in court, Romanow said, and they would inform Indians of their legal rights, in their native language if necessary.

Buses Ordered

EDMONTON (CP) — Purchase of 35 diesel buses for a total of $1,530,924 for the Edmonton Transit System was approved Monday night by city council.

Council was informed that propane-powered buses, while more desirable in terms of less pollution, aren't practical because replacement parts aren't available.

Cyclist Found

CANMORE, Alta. (CP) — A 14-year-old boy who was reported missing Sunday when he did not return from a trail ride by motorcycle in the Bow River Forest Reserve was found Monday.

Timothy Roy Kemp of Springbank, Alta., was reported in good condition after a night out. Searchers said his motorcycle had broken down in the wilderness area west of Calgary.

Land Bill Studied

REGINA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Jack Messer said Monday the foreign ownership of land bill will be referred to a special select committee for study and may not be given third reading until some subsequent sitting of the legislature.

Messer made the disclosure during second reading of the Foreign Ownership of Land Act, designed to prevent sale of agricultural land to persons not living in Saskatchewan and includes anyone living outside the province in the category of foreigners.

Agreement Signed

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — Workers at all Safeway stores here have agreed to a new working agreement which maintains their position as the highest-paid retail workers in the city, Len Wallace said Monday.

Wallace, provincial representative of the Retail Wholesale and Department Store Union, said in an interview that the Prince Albert workers now earn wages equal to counterparts in Saskatoon and Regina. The 29-month contract gives female clerks an hourly rate of $3.20; male clerks, $3.67; meat cutters, $4.10.

ALDERMEN REJECT ATTENDANCE RECORD

EDMONTON (CP) — An alderman failed in an attempt to have city councillors' attendance at meetings recorded when the majority of city council decided Monday night it was immaterial.

Under a motion presented by Ald. Ron Hayter, aldermanic attendance records would have been compiled for all regular and special council meetings and committee meetings to which councillors are assigned. There would be a yearly report.

Only one other alderman supported the move.

Ald. Hayter said the public is entitled to know the attendance record of aldermen to help them assess their representatives.

Opponents said the motion was meaningless and unnecessary. "The contribution of an individual is more important than his attandance," said Ald. Cec Purves.

All members of council were present at the meeting.

They Help People Enjoy Being Alive

A unique community experiment utilizing the magic of friendship, the energies of at least six young women and a Local Initiative Grant, is taking place on Cordova Bay Road at Corner Stone centre.

The hall, attached to St. David's-by-the-Sea, has become a community meeting place for young mothers, lonely elderly folk and anyone wishing to make new friends, exchange ideas or practise crafts.

Corner Stone was organized last month by a group of concerned residents who call themselves the Cordova Bay Irregulars.

Two committee members, Helen Grolle and Virginia Elruk, work at the centre Monday to Friday, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., organizing discussion groups, visits from the Island Home Industries mobile Craftwagon bus, trips to shopping centres for older people and "visiting" with droppers-in.

Another committee member, Dorin Doyle, explained: "We talk a lot about poverty — poverty among Indians, for instance. But a great deal of poverty today is in the field of mental health."

Prevention

Corner Stone is regarded by the volunteers as a preventative medicine for loneliness and disorientation which afflicts many people in today's society. Some of the most popular parts of the weekly program are attended by members of Brook Manor Rest Home, a half-way rehabilitation house for those who have suffered from mental illness.

So far, 90 people have registered for sessions including folk dancing taught by Judith Wallach, yoga exercises, toymkaing, stitchery taught by Friedl Waelti and pottery taught by Mrs. Neville Life.

Corner Stone has sufficient backing from a Local Initiative Grant to operate until the end of May. At that time its success will be evaluated and, if there are enough "client hours", the Canada Assistance Plan will, perhaps, support the program after a summer recess.

"Biggest problem facing organizers is a method of contacting people.

"Those who would really benefit are those who are also the hardest to reach," explains Helen Grolle.

Members of a Cordova Bay senior citizens' "Leisure Hour" group have been incorporated into the weekly schedule and meet at Corner Stone each Wednesday. The main body of this club had moved into a condominium built close to town, leaving some rather dispirited members.

Wide Program

Now, bridge games and painting classes are under way, and volunteers are planning a more stimulating, wider interest program for these people.

Tuesday and Thursday of each week is scheduled for art and craft instruction, designed to interest younger people.

Art and craft instruction, designed to interest younger people, is scheduled for Tuesdays and Thursdays. Mondays, Wednesday afternoons and Fridays are devoted to outings and activities for older folk.

Mrs. Margo Galloway, proprietor of Brook Manor Rest Home, is enthusiastic about the effects Corner Stone has already had on her patients.

"This centre has solved a tremendous need by providing a normal community atmosphere helpful in rehabilitation," she said.

Listeners

"Things really start to happen when people find receptive listeners. There is a sudden uprush of freedom over a cup of coffee," she said.

Corner Stone is mainly dedicated to "helping people enjoy being alive." Eventually, the committee hopes that the daily program will be shaped by the participants themselves.

"Many just don't realize how they can help another person," emphasizes Helen Grolle.

The former occupational therepist disagrees with persons being split apart by age and says that some of the best moments at the centre occur because a young mother and baby have dropped in for a visit.

"Babies are great socializers," she said.

Nothing Masculine About This Work

Susan Marie gives shag cut to Gary Stevenson.

By PAT MUNSON
Times Correspondent

Susan Marie, a young hairstylist who works in a Victoria barber shop, is in no danger of causing her employer to lose his licence.

Last week, a Vancouver barber had his licence suspended for 90 days by the B.C. Barbers' Association for employing a woman stylist who doesn't have a barber's licence.

The case is now being investigated by Labor Minister James Chabot.

Dutch-born barber Syrt Wolters, 647 Fort Street, came to Canada 46 years ago and is an accredited teacher in barbering techniques. He is employing Susan Marie Blondin as an apprentice and, in about eight months, the young woman will write her exams set by the B.C. Barbers' Association.

Wolters predicts she will do "remarkably well."

"I have always wanted to do this work," said the young Mrs. Blondin, who started her training last November. She styles hair and beards but rarely touches sideburns.

"These are a very personal taste," she said.

Particular About Cut

Most men take good care of their hair and are very particular about the cut, says Susan Marie. Young boys are the most demanding customers, but the stylist enjoys working with them because they keep their hair very clean and "use no gunk."

Susan Marie is Wolters' second female assistant.

"There is nothing especially masculine about this work anyway," says the proprietor, adding that, although he is on the wrong side of the generation gap, his work is now very much in demand.

Electric clippers are seldom used by the stylist and have never been as popular with European barbers as with those on this continent.

"Artistry vanished with the use of the clippers," says Wolters.

Are Victorians trend-conscious about hair styles?

"They set their own fashion" says Susan Marie, greeting another customer, a young man sporting shoulder-length wiry curls who admitted he had been "out in the country awhile."

"This is going to take you about two hours," he grinned.

Gerontologist Finds Creativity-Age Link

LONDON (UPI) — Pablo Picasso is still painting at 90. Leopold Stokowski is still conducting at 90. Pablo Casals is still playing the cello at 95. And Robert Stolz, friend of Johann Strauss, is still, at 91 years of age, getting out of bed at 7 a.m. to compose new songs.

Dr. Alex Comfort of University College, one of the foremost experts in research into aging, is intrigued by the fact an extraordinary number of prominent people are still creatively functioning around the 90th year and over.

Expert at 91

To cite some more examples: P. G. Wodehouse, creator of the immortal Jeeves, is 90, has just published one of his best books and is working on a musical comedy with an 87-year-old collaborator. Bill Ricketts, chairman of Chappell's, the international music firm, is 90. The British Broadcasting Corporation's gardening expert, Fred Streeter, is 91.

Playwright Melchoir Lengyel is still at work at 92, King Gustav Adolf VI of Sweden and President Eamon De Valera of Ireland are both in their 90th year. The fiery Bangladesh opposition leader, Malana Hamid Khan Bashani, is 90. So is British Actress Dame Sybil Thorndike. And composer Rudolf Friml ("Rose Marie") is even older and still writing.

There have always been very old and active people. Titian was still painting "with incomparable steadiness of hand" when cut off by the plague at 99. Michelangelo was chipping away at a sculpture until a few weeks before death in his 90th year.

But the presence of intellectually vigorous oldsters in the numbers there are today is unusual and gerontologists are keenly interested in whether they come from long lived families or whether they are an indication people are remaining active longer.

Dr. Comfort says there are reasons for speculating that creative people do live a little longer now than ordinary people. What scientists are trying to do is make the unusual the average. And while Dr. Comfort is cautiously optimistic present day research will lead to longer lives, the time scale depends in what sort of finance is available.

"It wouldn't cost all that much," he said. "Relatively about the cos of one Apollo rocket. With that we could really study how defective cells slip through the body defenses — the mis-specification of cells."

He said this line of research might also be helpful in the fight against cancer. For that reason he thought it possible the big cancer drive heralded by President Nixon might produce a spinoff of value to those scientists, like himself, concerned with aging.

Prolong Life

Recently, Dr. Comfort has been working with anti-oxidants — food additives — which prolong the lives of mice apparently by neutralizing the side effects of some of the chemical reactions of living. But like all gerontologists he knows the ultimate study must be man himself.

Boost for B.C. Produce

A new symbol — identifying B.C. food products — will begin appearing on packages, in food store displays and in a government advertising campaign that begins Wednesday.

At a Monday morning press conference, Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford and Industrial Development, Trade and Commerce Minister Waldo Skillings asked people to show loyalty to B.C. fruit, vegetable, meat, fish and dairy products.

Need Support

"Agriculture is a very viable industry and an industry that should be supported," said Skillings. However, "the percentage of income to the farmers has not been equal to the time and effort involved," he added.

"We know in some cases our (food) prices are going to be higher, because our labor costs are higher," Skillings said. The minister added that he never buys low-priced Japanese or foreign cars because he wants to support Canadian automobile workers.

The B.C. food production industry is suffering from the dumping of low-priced foreign food products — highly subsidized by the country of origin — onto our market, said Shelford.

"We don't mind fair competition but we object to unfair competition," he said.

These subsidized imports, such as European and Taiwan apple juice, Mexican strawberries and California potatoes, make it difficult for B.C. products to compete, Shelford added.

"Unless there's some loyalty shown . . . the strawberry industry and strawberry processing could be wiped out" this coming year, Shelford said. He added that Mexican strawberry farmers still use DDT, now banned in Canada, which helps cut their costs.

"Sun Rype are having problems with all of their processing, even juice," the agricultural minister said, because of cheap foreign imports. And the potato industry last year suffered from an influx of cheap California potatoes.

"They either plow them under or ship them up here," he said.

Mushroom growing has become one of the most successful food industries in B.C., said Shelford. There is competition from Formosan and Chinese frozen mushrooms, but people still prefer fresh ones. B.C. foods are often fresher than imports, he said.

"We can, with the co-operation of the chain stores, give the British Columbia producers a break," Skillings said.

Include Menus

The government campaign will cost $200,000. It will include a province-wide advertising campaign, tie-ins with local food store promotions, preparation and distribution of menu ideas using B.C. foods, and development of B.C. food menus for restaurants and hotels.

When the government conducted a similar campaign in 1956, it was very successful, Skillings said.

He added that he would like to see a federal protective tariff imposed on a regional basis to protect food producers in certain areas.

"They want to protect the wheat farmer but what about the fruit farmer in B.C.?" Skillings said, referring to the federal government.

When Baby Stands Up Watch Full Ashtrays

JELLY SIDE DOWN
nancy stahl

It is always a bit thrilling to watch your baby grab hold of the coffee table and pull himself up to a standing position for the first time.

Too Busy

At least I'm sure that some people must muse along in that vein. Personally, I've always been too busy prying cigarette butts out of his fist and trying to prevent him from eating our coffee table copy of Art Treasures of the Louvre. (Oh well, everyone's seen the Mona Lisa anyway.).

I have found that anything unable to withstand being bitten, licked, or smashed repeatedly with the blunt end of a baby bottle must automatically be moved to the mantlepiece for three years or so.

One unfortunate apsect of your baby's standing-up prowess is that it invariably occurs two weeks before he learns to sit down. After 20 minutes, the experience of drooling onto the bare top of a freshly-waxed table naturally begins to pale a trifle. A timid baby begins to cry immediately. The more adventuresome child experiments with relaxing his knees — whereupon the table leaps up and delivers a nasty crack to his chin. In either case, the parents are confronted with a child who is crying like a baby (how else?) for apparently no reason other than frustration, at being unable to smash the Wedgewood ashtray on the mantle.

More Howls

Despite being offered a cookie, a rattle, and (in desperation) the Wedgewood ashtray, he continues to howl. After you realize the source of his problem and unhook him, you discover that while you were busy congratulating yourself, he stood up again. And he has no more idea of how to get down than he had three minutes ago.

Ideally, children should be required to crawl until they are seven or eight. At which time, they could probably be trusted not to eat ivy or create snowstorms by blowing into full ashtrays. And if they required assistance in sitting, they could simply say, "Please, ma'am, could you give us a hand here?"

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Wed., April 26, 1972
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Don't affix signature to documents unless authorized to do so. One in authority could be resentful, suspicious. Check papers, especially where legal matters are involved. Mate, partner could act in eccentric manner.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Low-key approach is best: be diplomatic and receptive. Family security is involved. Personal services are emphasized. Don't expect the usual. Changes occur. Rapid pace is fine now — for others. For you, go slow.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): In love, you find where you stand. In other areas, you are tempted to take unnecessary chances. Important to know difference between one who is sincere or otherwise. Element of deception is present. Be wary.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Rely on experience. Stick to familiar ground. Resist one who attempts to sell get-rich quick scheme. Don't skirt law. Capricorn is in picture. What appeared basic may prove to be transitory.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Relatives, neighbors may act in confused manner. Key is to check messages, calls. Finish now rather than attempting to begin projects. Co-operate with Aries. Don't break health resolutions. Let go of past.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Gains come from unorthodox source. Change of routine should be welcomed. Take a more independent stance. Guard valuables. When others know you care and are aware, they will co-operate. Trust Leo.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Differentiate between publicity and notoriety. Your inner feeling will serve as reliable guide. Aquarian could play prominent role. Grandiose proposal should be carefully examined. No one is giving you something for nothing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): One you think much of could have proverbial feet of clay. Accent is on getting puzzle pieces together. Bizarre situation is about to be concluded. You can and will land on your feet. Flash your smile.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You are drawn in two directions. Gain is shown if you choose course that requires steady determination. Otherwise, you have fun but results will be empty. Choice is your own. Don't play second fiddle.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You require permission. Don't try too much, too soon. Accept need for revision. Obtain hint from Sagittarius message. Define goal. Gain greater self-understanding. Member of opposite sex reveals intent.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You require additional information. Costs have not been analyzed — or revealed. Know this and take appropriate action. Dig deep. Reject superficial indications. Those who care the most may be the most subdued.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Avoid self-deception. Financial commitment needs examination. Policies, documents may require changes. Correct past mistakes. Don't take situations, persons for granted. Perfect techniques. Key wish may yet be fulfilled.

Unnecessarily Cruel To Deny Her Visits

DEAR ABBY: I was shocked with your sympathetic attitude toward Heartbroken Granny. (She wanted to visit her son's children though he was divorced and his ex-wife was remarried and had taken the children to live in another state.)

I was a divorcee with preschool children, and now I am happily remarried to a wonderful man who is doing an excellent job with his ready-made family.

I have been bugged to death by my ex-mother-in-law who "misses" her grandchildren. She sends them cards and gifts for their birthdays and holidays, so they won't forget her. I always send her a brief but to-the-point thank you. I wish she'd stop sending them things!

As yet she hasn't asked to visit the children (we live in a different state), but if she does I'll not permit it.

My children now have new grandparents who adore them, and one set of grandparents is enough. I just can't understand the nerve of my ex-in-laws. Why can't they accept the fact that I want nothing more to do with them?

You should have told Heartbroken Granny to leave her ex-grandchildren alone. Sometimes you make more problems than you solve.—Happily Remarried Mother.

DEAR MOTHER: When one loses a mate (whether by divorce or death), if there are children, the biological grandparents remain grandparents forever. Circumstances differ, but it would seem unnecessarily cruel to deny grandparents the right to see their grandchildren.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

The Canadian Aviation Historical Society is honoured to commend

THE MEDALLIC HISTORY OF CANADIAN AVIATION

in solid Sterling Silver and 22Kt Gold proof edition.

To commemorate the 50th anniversaries of great events in Canada's Age of Aviation, THE WELLINGS MINT will strike 36 original art medals —in a strictly limited proof edition for Canadian aviation enthusiasts.

One bitter cold day in the early 1900's, young John McCurdy took his Silver Dart up into the air at Cape Breton — and flew nearly a mile across a frozen lake. It was an astonishing feat, and it began the dramatic story of aviation in Canada.

A story that was to include many such dramatic moments in the years to come. Since the first powered take-off from Cape Breton in February 1909, Canada's air history had been studded with great events and great personalities. Now these events and the people who made them memorable are captured forever in the strength and enduring beauty of precious metals.

The Society has never before specifically commended a venture such as this. However, its Directors felt that at this time Canada's Age of Aviation ought to be celebrated in a very special way. The Directors, therefore, are co-operating with THE WELLINGS MINT in this series of 36 individual art medals to be designated The Medallic History of Canadian Aviation.

Co-operating with the Society in this series are:

Canadian War Museum, National Museum of Man; the Aviation and Space Division, National Museum of Science and Technology; and the Canadian Fighter Pilots Association.

The medals themselves are unusual. George Velinger, one of Canada's most talented medallic artists is sculpturing all 36 medals. Each medal bears two separate designs — one on either side, in total giving a comprehensive story of Canadian aviation spanning more than six decades. Each design was carefully researched for historical and technical accuracy, and has been authenticated by Mr. Kenneth Molson, former curator of the National Aviation Museum and now a director of the Canadian Aviation Historical Society.

As an Aviation enthusiast, you will be fascinated by the people and events these medals depict: the 50th anniversary of the Royal Canadian Air Force; the first scheduled air passenger and air mail service in Canada; the stuntmen of the 20's; the bush pilots; the first Canadian jet fighter; the famous bush plane, the Fokker Universal; the Mosquito, Beaver and Caribou. Each design highlights another great moment in Canadian flight.

Portrayed on many of the medals are the men who made it happen: F. W. "Casey" Baldwin; J. A. McCurdy; Donald R. MacLaren; Stuart Graham; W. R. "Wop" May; Errol Boyd; Harold Quigley; Herbert Hollick-Kenyon and Buzz Beurling.

Each design highlights another great moment in Canadian flight, and the complete series becomes a permanent record in precious metal of this eventful era in our history. To enhance its educational value, each medal is accompanied by a folder describing the events of individuals depicted and their contributions to Canadian Aviation.

FIRST EDITION PROOF SETS, HALLMARKED AND NUMBERED

Each of the medals in the series measures a full 44mm (1 3/4") in diameter. The medals will be struck expressly for each subscriber in a choice of solid Sterling Silver and 22Kt Gold, and will be issued at the rate of one per month over the next 36 months.

Only one set of medals will be minted for each advance subscriber, and all of the silver and gold medals will be first edition proofs, individually hallmarked and numbered. In addition, subscribers will receive two deluxe albums without charge in which to keep the complete collection of medals and reference folders.

LIMITED TO THOSE WHO ORDER BY MAY 12, 1972

To qualify as an advance subscriber, your reservation must be postmarked no later than May 12, 1972. The number of first edition medals minted will be limited to the exact number of reservations received by that date.

As a Canadian, you will take special pride in owning this superb proof collection of finely-crafted aviation medals. Over the years it is likely to increase in value because of its limited-edition status.

Those wishing to own a first edition proof set in the future will find it determined entirely by availability from original subscribers.

If you wish to become a subscriber, you may do so by placing your reservation now. THE WELLINGS MINT guarantees you protection at current prices for the full series regardless of any changes in the price of precious metals. This guarantee is possible because the mint will contract at the outset for sufficient bullion of gold and silver for all the medals in the series.

It is important that you make your decision now. Orders can only be accepted if they are postmarked by May 12, 1972. Any order postmarked after that date will be returned.

AVAILABILITY OF BRONZE MEDALS

A limited number of mint quality sets will be struck in bronze, primarily for younger aviation enthusiasts who do not wish to make the investment the silver or gold edition requires. The bronze medals may be acquired for $4.75 each.

Tax Rate Cut For Cowichan

DUNCAN — Cowichan School District's tax rate is down half a mill from last year, Trustee Dave Haywood, finance committee chairman, told the board Monday night.

He attributed the decrease to a 6.1 per cent increase in assessments, and a 2 per cent decrease in the provincial government allowable operating expense.

After including regional college costs and deducting the 1971 surplus of $200,000 (most of which is tuition fees paid by the federal government for the education of Indian students), Haywood said the 1972 mill rate is 31.51, "the lowest in recent years."

(A municipal official said the decrease represents about $15 in the average homeowner's taxes. With the homeowner's grant up $15 this year, he said the homeowner should about break even, taking into consideration the increase in assessments.)

The total assessment for the district is $98 million. One mill is worth $98,000.

Board members recently passed an operating budget of $4,436,022, which is 5.59 per cent more than last year's.

"The operation of Cowichan School District (31.57 mills) compares very favorably with the provincial average (32.42) indicating the district is maintaining a high level of efficiency while maintaining a standard of education that compares very favorably with any school district in British Columbia," Haywood said.

Haywood told trustees the Cowichan Senior secondary school has the lowest teacher-pupil ratio in the province and for the past two years students from the school have won the governor-general's bronze award.

"At a time when the local municipal council is increasing the mill rate in general purposes (North Cowichan 1.5 mills; Duncan 2 mills) the board and administration staff have been meeting the challenge of increasing economic pressures while maintaining a good education system," Haywood added.

REWARD SOUGHT

DUNCAN — Mayor Jim Quaife said today he will ask council to post a $100 reward for the conviction of anyone damaging city-owned buildings.

Quaife said he is "highly incensed at the senseless act of vandalism" over the weekend that caused over $200 damage to Duncan's $135,000 centennial complex that hasn't even been officially opened yet.

Between midnight and 3 a.m. Saturday vandals threw rocks through the back windows of the senior-citizen-library complex and damaged one of the walls.

Quaife said he will ask council to endorse his reward suggestion at the Monday meeting as well as investigate the feasibility of a night patrol in addition to RCMP.

It's 'Government by Default'

By their own lack of knowledge and participation in local government, Canadians put up with a system of "government by default," municipal officials were told at a Victoria conference Monday.

Michael Johnson, president of the Association of Counties and Regions of Ontario, told delegates to the second annual conference of the Committee on Municipal and Regional Information Management that the average citizen has little influence on the way his community's affairs are managed.

"The local system runs on trust — or more accurately, on a measure of trust. To a disturbing degree, it is government by default," he said.

"The citizen seems to possess a threshold up to which he will tolerate a certain degree of mis-management, inefficiency, insensitivity and even corruption.

"Beyond that threshold he, or at least his watchful guardian, the daily newspaper, is bestirred to action. Hence he participates in local affairs only occasionally and in a negative way."

These factors, Johnson said, coupled with the lack of the opposition party element in local government, mean that regulation and control of the system come from within the structure.

Atlantic Salmon Ban Blamed on Denmark

Conservative critic Lloyd Crouse (South Shore) also blamed what he termed the blind greed of the Danes but added that the Canadian government should have taken action as long ago as 1964.

Crouse said there have been repeated warnings since then that the salmon was being endangered by fishing on the high seas after discovery in the early 1960s of an ocean feeding ground off Greenland.

Davis said an 80 per cent decrease in salmon returning to the Miramichi, Restigouche and Saint John rivers of New Brunswick is the reason for the May 1 ban, which would affect more that 900 fishermen in that province and the Port aux Basques area of Newfoundland.

About $2 million would be spent to compensate the New Brunswick and Port aux Basques fishermen and start a rebuilding program.

But Davis said Canada won't spend money to breed salmon if the Danes continue to take them on the high seas.

Sharp rejected a suggestion by James A. McGrath (PC-St. John's East) that Canada impose economic sanctions against countries that continue to fish salmon off Greenland. Boats from Norway and the Faroes — Danish islands north of Scotland — also have taken them.

Sharp said he hopes the Canadian example will inspire the Danes — who signed an agreement recently with the U.S. to stop salmon fishing by 1975 — to agree to an immediate ban. The minister said he can't understand how a country sensitive to conservation problems could reject Canada's position.

Canada's main position is that it should have exclusive fishing rights over fish like salmon that spawn in its own rivers. More immediate, however, is a desire to have salmon fishing on the high seas stopped.

WAGE HIKE, PENSION IN 2-YEAR CONTRACT

VANCOUVER — Four hundred employees of Macdonalds Consolidated Ltd. and Canada Safeway Ltd. have voted to accept a new two-year contract, it was announced Monday.

John Squire, representative for the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union, said the contract provides for wage increases of 50 cents an hour this year and 40 cents next year on rates ranging from $4.30 to $5.14.

Squire also said there will be a new joint trusteed, non-contributory pension plan with the employer paying 4 per cent of payroll in 1972 and 7 per cent in 1973.

Settlement affects employees at the distribution centre, South Burnaby; milk and ice cream plants, Vancouver; Kingston supply division, Vancouver; coffee plant, Vancouver; and grocery warehouses in Victoria and Dawson Creek.

Contempt Action Delayed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A contempt of court action launched in British Columbia Supreme Court by MacMillan Bloedel (Alberni) Ltd., against employees at its Franklin River camp was adjourned Monday to May 1.

The fallers, who walked out last week in a dispute over failure to negotiate a pricing agreement, were ordered by B.C. Supreme Court Jan. 31 to refrain from breaching the collective agreement between the company and the International Woodworkers of America, and from "any action to limit production" at Franklin River.

B. B. Trevino, acting for MacMillan Bloedel, did not oppose the decision, but said he hoped there would be no further breaches of an injunction issued last January by Justice E. E. Hinkson.

Trevino said all the defendants in the contempt action have not returned to work.

Salmon Project Started

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — The International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission has approved budget estimates for the fiscal year 1973-74 which include $872,000 for the start of a $14 million program to increase salmon production.

Thor Tollefson, chairman of the commission, said in a news release Monday facilities will be constructed to increase the production of sockeye salmon at upper Pitt River in the lower mainland and upper Adams River in southwestern B.C.

The first stage of a spawning channel will also be constructed in the Chilliwack River in the lower mainland to increase the production of pink salmon.

Similar projects are also planned for the Horsefly River, McKinley Creek, Barrier River and Harrison River, where construction will be started the following year.

Tollefson said the budget now will be submitted to the governments of Canada and the United States.

Good Soil at Root Of All Good Plants

At the weekend I had the privileged pleasure of seeing the work of a dedicated compost maker, and the uses to which she is putting the results.

Yes, it was a woman compost-maker, one who feels strongly that a good soil is at the roots of good plants.

A busy woman, with professional work as well as family and garden, she admittedly knew little of the mechanics of gardening 10 years ago but now is intent on raising fruits and vegetables for family use.

The site of her experiments was once an old driveway, now occupied by vegetable and small fruit beds. Associations of chives around strawberry beds, and garlic ringing the broad beans, pieces of mint allowed to grow up here and there where summer cabbage plants are to be set — all this shows an inclination to keep the food crops "clean" — clean enough to be able to pluck pieces to chew on as you stand and admire.

The broad beans are making strong growth, and potato sets are sprouting and rooting into the compost covered with dried grass.

Instead of being planted into the soil in the conventional way, these sets were spaced out on the surface of the compost dressed bed, covered with a small shovelful of compost, then mulched with a three to five-inch layer of dried grass, straw and hay loosely piled.

In this way, the potato sets were not contending with cold wet soil. Now they have both top shoots and roots. The tops will grow through the loose mulch and when mature the crop will be lying on the surface beneath the mulch, their roots in the rich soil.

One of the older compost heaps has been fitted with a wood frame and a glass cover to utilize the residual warmth in bringing along tender vegetable plants.

It looks like a small coldframe on the flattened top of the compost heap. It is deep enough to hold five-inch clay pots standing on the compost, holding tomato plants already with flower buds. Well spaced out, getting direct light overhead all day and the protection of the glass cover before night air chills them, the plants are stocky and healthy, promising early maturity of fruits when they have been transferred to one of the vegetable beds on the sunny slope that was once the old driveway.

The warmth retained by a heap of composted material is considerable and this spreads upwards around the plants, contributing also some humidity so that additional water is seldom needed in the pots.

The soil in this garden has literally been made in the compost heaps, using loads of leaves not wanted by other people, seaweed, dried grass, horse manure, grass clippings, household scraps of eggshells, fruit skins, and discarded plant material from anywhere in the garden.

The result is a deep, moisture-holding soil, which, if replenished with a top dressing each year, will continue to yield high returns in not only food crops but in an inner warmth of accomplishment.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

If one were to look at all four hands in today's deal, it would appear that our South declarer had to lose a heart, a diamond, and a club. But when play had ended, it was observed that he had made eleven tricks. The deal arose in a rubber-bridge game. Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH
♠ Q 10 5
♡ 6 4 3

WEST
♠ 9 8 6 4
♡ Q J 10 8 2

EAST
♠ 7 3 2
◇ Q 5 4 3 2

SOUTH
♡ A K 7
◇ A K J 10 7 6

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 ◇	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	3 NT	Pass
5 ◇	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♣.

Had South guessed to pass North's negative three-no-trump rebid, this contract would have been a cozier one than five diamonds. All the defenders could have taken would have been four club tricks, and by repeated finesses in diamonds, declarer could have made four diamonds, three spades, and two hearts.

But for South to have passed North's three-notrump bid would have required clairvoyance. North, in theory, could have had just two or three low clubs, in which case the defenders would have had it in their power to cash five, or even six, club tricks. And further, from South's position, even if he went down at five diamonds, his 100 in honors would compensate for the trick loss.

Against South's five-diamond contract West opened the king of clubs. When it won the trick, he continued with the club queen, East overtaking with the ace as South ruffed with his ten-spot.

Dummy was then entered by leading the spade jack and overtaking it with the queen. The nine of diamonds was now played, East following with the deuce as South dropped the six. On this trick West discarded a spade, imparting to South the discouraging news that East had been dealt five trumps headed by the queen.

Next came the eight of trumps, and when East again played low, South did likewise, playing the seven. Declarer next led a club off the board, and South ruffed the trick with his jack. He then cashed the ace and king of spades, after which he played the ace and king of hearts. His last three cards were the ace and king of trumps and the seven of hearts. And, of course, his only loser was a heart trick.

Thus, as declarer played the hand, he made all of his six trumps, plus three spades, and two hearts. In all systems of arithmetic, this added to 11 tricks.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Alfred J. Ingram wish to express their sincere appreciation to all their friends for their many acts of kindness and messages of sympathy in the loss of their beloved husband and father. Special thanks to the staff of D.V.A. Hospital and The War Amps Association. — Ethel Ingram.

9 IN MEMORIAM

ADAMS — In loving memory of our Mother Mrs. M. Adams (Tillie) who passed away April 25, 1970.
And while she lies in peaceful sleep,
Her memory we shall always keep.
—Phyllis, Harry, Albert and families.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BLACKSTOCK — In loving memory Minnie Myrtle Blackstock, who passed away April 25, 1971.
Deep in the heart a picture
Of a loved one laid to rest.
In memory's frame we shall keep it,
Because she was one of the best.
—Eleanor, Bonnie and Jerry.

FOX — John.
One year has passed since that sad day,
When one we loved was called away;
God took him home—it was His will;
Within our hearts he liveth still.

Effects of Climate on Arthritics

As many people know, there are many arthritics who call themselves "human barometers," because they can detect a storm approaching perhaps 100 miles away. What has always puzzled me about this is that, so far, no one seems to have been able to correlate the increase of pain in arthritic joints with any particular change in atmosphere which can today be measured.

Interestingly, some animals can apparently foretell an approaching storm long before human beings can. For instance, when a storm is approaching a coast, the seagulls will leave the ocean shore and go inland to some lake.

A number of years ago, at the Mayo Clinic, my good friend, Dr. Leonard Rowntree and his associates studied a number of "human barometers" who felt pain in their joints as a storm approached. Dr. Rowntree looked for changes in the barometric pressure, in the temperature of the air, in the amount of moisture in the air and in the ionization of the air, but he learned nothing.

In those days, I hoped that someone would go at the problems the other way around, putting the human barometer in a room in which all the measureable factors could be kept coinstant and also could be changed. Eventually, this was done at the University of California Hospital. In 1948 Dr. G. Edstrom constructed a constant control room for the study of arthritics. He found that they were better off with the temperature held constant at 84 degrees Farenheit and the humidity at 40 percent.

In 1961 Dr. Joseph Hollander of the University of Pennsylvania built a constant pressure and temperature room, where he studied people with rheumatoid arthritis (the severely crippling form of arthritis), osteoarthritis (the arthritis of older people), and pulmonary emphysema (a disease in which the lungs lose their elasticity). The persons could look out of a window and see that it was raining, but the storm no longer affected their joints. Dr. Hollander said that as he changed single factors in the atmosphere of the room, such as the temperature of the air or the barometric pressure, he did not change the condition of the patients.

One winter day, I had a very interesting experience when, after living for a week in Central California with the temperature fairly uniform at 65 degrees, I got on a train in Berkeley. A few hours later I was in the mountain pass near Reno where the temperature was around zero. Although the temperature in my room in the train had been kept at about 75 degrees, and although I was in a bedroom with closed double windows, my legs began to itch terribly as they usually do when, towards the end of October, the temperature drops rapidly outside my apartment — but not in it.

Evidently, some influence had come through the walls of the railroad car. It was not the fall in barometric pressure that bothered me, because I have often gone quickly from sea level at Sacramento to some 8,000 feet at the summit of the pass, without suffering the slighest discomfort.

Ocean Falls Worth Saving Says Williston

VANCOUVER (CP) — Resources Minister Ray Williston said it is hoped the town of Ocean Falls, 350 miles upcoast from Vancouver, can be saved.

Crown Zellerbach, which operates the town's only industry, has announced plans to close its operations. Williston at a nominating meeting here said there is a fairly new hospital in Ocean Falls and new schools and the townsite is worth saving.

He said Ocean Falls might be the site for a fish cannery being planned by the federal government or could become a sort of logging and fishing headquarters.

Williston also said pressure by residents of the Fraser Valley and the lower mainland could force the provincial government to build the controversial Moran Dam on the Fraser River.

Williston said public pressure may force a go-ahead on the dam if agreement can't be reached to build three dams on tributaries of the Fraser to control the annual spring freshet.

Dams on tributaries of the Fraser would give virtually no return on an investment of $1 billion, while the Moran Dam would pay dividends in the form of power, he added.

He said there is a record snowpack on the province's mountains this year and the government is making preparations for a flood, but these won't stand up to the type of flood the snowpack could unleash.

Square Dancers Set For Annual Jamboree

The 19th annual Spring Jamboree presented by Vancouver Island Western Square Dace Association and the Victoria and District Caller-Teacher Association will be held Saturday at Highrock School, 637 Head St.

The public is invited, free, to watch as 350 to 400 square dancers show their stuff from 8:15 p.m. when the grand march begins, to 11:30 p.m.

Past-president is Gordon Rutledge.

Past-president is Fred Willing.

Retired Architect, Fred Dawson, Dies

Charles Frederick Dawson, former federal government architect for B.C. and the Yukon and a Victoria resident for 65 years, died Monday. He was 87.

Born in Birmingham, England, Dawson was a veteran of the First World War, serving with the 7th Battalion of the Canadian Expeditionary Force and winning a Distinguished Conduct Medal.

He is survived by two sons, Horace and Irvine, and two daughters, Mrs. William (Jean) Levis and Mrs. Gilbert (Barbara) Brown, all of Victoria. His wife died in 1944.

Dawson was an honorary life member of the Architectural Institute of B.C., was past-president of the Britannia Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion, past master of Mount Newton Lodge No. 89, AF and AM, and Camosun Lodge No. 60, AF and AM.

He was also a member of the Royal Order of Jesters and of Fouranex of Canada.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by McCall Brothers.

Desco, Jordan Oil Pact Signed

AMMAN (Reuter) — The Jordanian cabinet has adopted a draft law ratifying an oil concession agreement with the Canadian firm, Desco, cabinet sources said today.

The agreement, awarding the firm a 40-year oil concession in Jordan, was signed here on April 4 by Prime Minister Ahmed al-Lawzi in his capacity as head of the natural resources authority.

The Canadian firm has pledged under the agreement to spend $20 million on oil exploration in northern Jordan.

Palmer Returns To Pen

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Raymond Joseph Palmer returned to Canada from Australia under RCMP escort Sunday night and was taken directly to the British Columbia Penitentiary from which he had escaped more than two years earlier.

Palmer, 36, escaped from the penitentiary with Murray Alan Boyd in January, 1970. He was captured by Australian police in Sydney Feb. 24 and ordered extradited to face trial on a charge of escaping custody.

No date has been set for his court appearance.

Boyd was later shot by Vancouver police while resisting arrest.

No Litigation In Worley Case

The litigation arising out of the articles appearing in the Victoria Daily Times from March 1 to 3 which articles referred to Mr. Ronald B. Worley, has now been discontinued in the light of an amicable settlement having been reached between all the parties.

Air Power Last Hope For Kontum

Times News Services

SAIGON — North Vietnamese infantrymen supported by artillery and tanks outflanked the remaining South Vietnamese forward defences in the central highlands today and poured down Highway 14 toward the provincial capital of Kontum, the main objective of their new drive.

Miles-long streams of refugees moved ahead of them toward Kontum, normally a town of 27,000 persons but now swollen with countless refugees hoping to fly to Pleiku, 25 miles to the south, or to Saigon, 230 miles further south. Mortar rounds hit the Kontum airfield today, wounding three children and damaging an Air Vietnam airliner and a U.S. C130 supply plane.

"Kontum is defensible," said John Paul Vann, senior U.S. adviser to the Second Military Region.

The North Vietnamese were numerically superior, but if good weather replaced the present overcast conditions American and South Vietnamese air power could save the day for the city, he added.

The Communists also renewed their offensive in the coastal highlands region of South Vietnam today, opening fire on a string of government bases along Highway 1 in Binh Dinh province 80 miles east of the Kontum drive. They surrounded one of the bases. A U.S. destroyer was firing on the Communists from offshore in the South China Sea.

Field dispatches said the Communist drive so far had overrun at least nine government support bases in the highlands region and bypassed at least five despite hundreds of tons of bombs dropped there by B-52s and strikes by fighter-bombers and helicopter gunships.

U.S. fighter-bombers today knocked out a bridge on Highway 14 five miles south of Dak To, but military sources expressed doubt one blown bridge would halt the North Vietnamese drive that a Pentagon spokesman described Monday as the opening of a long-expected general offensive in the highlands.

At An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon and another major Communist objective, the South Vietnamese were reported still holding on. The commanding general said the South Vietnamese were mounting a "counteroffensive" after U.S. planes had inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy.

Electricians Strike 10 Victoria Projects

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

Strike action was taken this morning against two Victoria electrical contracting firms as British Columbia's construction industry dispute moved towards a general shutdown.

Local 230 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers struck Camosun Electric Co. (1969) Ltd. and Mawson Gage Associates Ltd. but there was no job site picketing.

"We are not wanting to affect other trades," said local business agent Jim McAvoy.

He said 30 electricians at 10 job sites are affected, the largest of which is the new $2.5 million Victoria Press Ltd. building at Douglas and Kings.

24 GET NOTICE

McAvoy said no decision has been made yet as to which companies will be struck next but the union has served strike notice at 24 contractors on Vancouver Island.

He added that the union's policy is to try to avoid involving hospitals.

Labor Minister James Chabot met both sides in the dispute Monday in an apparently unsuccessful attempt to avert a shutdown.

"It doesn't look too good," he said later. "It looks like we are going to have a shutdown."

WAIT 'TILL MAY 1

Chabot said he urged both sides to refrain from strikes or lockouts, at least until May 1. He would take another look at the dispute if it is not settled by then.

Ed Fay, secretary of the B.C. and Yukon Building and Construction Trades Council, said contractors again asked unions to drop proposals to reduce the work week to 35 hours from 37½.

He said the number of unions seeking the reduced work week has declined because the wage offer last Friday was not large enough.

"The offer is only in the range of the 6.5 per cent guidelines and that's not good enough for people working only eight months a year," he said.

88 CENTS OFFERED

The offer is for an extra 88 cents an hour over two years, of which 80 cents would be for wages.

Two other issues are contractor proposals to reduce union hiring hall procedures and travel time benefits on the lower mainland, he said.

Construction unions originally sought raises ranging from 10 per cent in one year to 61 per cent over two years. Current rates range from $4.79 an hour for laborers to $6.80 for inside electricians.

C. J. Connaghan, president of Construction Labor Relations Association, bargaining agent for 840 contractors, was not available for comment this morning.

Contractors have voted in favor of a lockout and the legally-required notice period expires Thursday morning, after which contractors are free to take such action.

A number of unions have taken strike votes, some have served strike notice and the plumbers union in the Vancouver area is on strike against eight contractors but without picketing.

A total of 17 unions and 60,000 construction workers are involved in the dispute, encompassing almost all organized sections of the building industry in B.C.

BREAKFAST IS 'FREE'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Apparently countering critics of its forthcoming B.C. tour, the provincial cabinet has volunteered to foot the bill for breakfast all along the route.

Industry Minister Waldo Skillings made the announcement Monday. There has been criticism by some interior B.C. mayors who objected to providing free meals to the premier's entourage.

Carriage Hid Bombs

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Gunmen using a baby carriage filled with gelignite bombed Northern Ireland's main telephone exchange during the night then opened fire on British troops trying to evacuate 70 telephone operators and other persons from the building.

Snipers fired at troops when they arrived to try to clear persons from the telephone exchange in case there were more blasts. The soldiers fired back and hit one sniper.

The building was cleared but operators later returned to their switchboards. Seconds before the explosion, the operators and other workers dashed into the rear rooms.

"There was no panic although glass was flying across the switchboard room."

The bomb was contained in one of several packages delivered by a truck driver. The storekeeper who signed for them discovered a ticking alarm clock as he opened one of the parcels, the army said.

13 Years to Peace: Report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A secret study ordered by President Nixon the day after he took office revealed that it would take from 8.3 to 13.4 years to complete pacification of South Vietnam and that the Communists were capable of outlasting the allies indefinitely.

The study was conducted by Henry Kissinger, Nixon's national security affairs adviser, who compiled the results in a memo entitled "responses to national security study memorandum 1."

Excerpts of the document were published for the first time this week, but today, Sen. Mike Gravel (D—Alaska) was blocked by Senate Republican whip Robert Griffin of Michigan in an effort to insert it into the congressional record.

The justice department had no immediate comment on the case, which brought to mind the publication of the Pentagon Papers, the Johnson administration's study of the buildup of the Vietnam war. The Nixon administration sued to prevent newspapers from publishing the Pentagon Papers but was overruled by the Supreme Court.

Parts of the Kissinger study were published this week by Newsweek magazine and columnist Jack Anderson, and the Washington Post published the memo in today's editions.

The documents show Nixon received "profoundly different" judgments from government agencies on the state of the Indochina war and the actions he should take.

The joint chiefs of staff, the American military command in Vietnam, the U.S. embassy in Saigon and the commander-in-chief of Pacific forces tended to take a "hawkish" and optimistic view. A more skeptical and pessimis-

CO-ED HIRED GUNS

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Kathleen Drewery, a 20-year-old college student, was so outraged at having her home robbed, police said, that she hired ex-gunmen to track the burglars down.

The result was three people killed and four others wounded. Miss Drewery was charged with murder.

Police said the student assigned the men to find burglars who stole $80 and a television set from her apartment.

The men, working on a description neighbors gave the girl, went to the home of Bernard Collins and held him and four others, including his wife, captive.

Soon, another man was added to the number of hostages. Subsequently, Collins, his wife and another woman were shot to death and the other four wounded.

Police said that three of the men and Miss Drewery have been charged with murder. They said they are hunting for the remaining three people she hired.

They added none of the people shot by the gunmen had been a suspect in the case.

Apollo 16 Returns With Treasures

Times News Services

HOUSTON — Apollo 16's astronauts escaped the dominance of the moon's gravity today and sped toward earth with a treasury of rocks that scientists think may include long-sought pieces of the primitive lunar crust.

John Young, Thomas Mattingly and Charles Duke showed the bright, grey-white moon receding behind them during an early morning impromptu telecast. They were reported on target for a splashdown in the Pacific Ocean Thursday afternoon.

Young and Duke walked on the moon, but today was Mattingly's day. His schedule called for an hour-long spacewalk to retrieve 6,500 feet of film from two mapping cameras in the spaceship's moon observatory.

A crucial engine burn Monday night thrust the astronauts out of lunar orbit at 6:14 p.m. PST and on course for earth, 240,000 miles away. The command ship is due to splash down in the South Pacific near Christmas Island.

Doubleheader U.S. Primary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts vote today in doubleheader presidential primary elections, with senators Hubert Humphrey and George McGovern forecasting victories. Senator Edmund Muskie was the underdog in both elections.

The dual primaries began an intensive month of Democratic balloting with Muskie of Maine, battling to remain a contender for the White Jouse nomination.

Brandt Faces Critical Vote

BONN (Reuter) — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt is facing a no-confidence vote in 48 hours which could end his 2½ years in power, but he is confident he can survive.

Equally confident of toppling him are the opposition Christian Democrats. They drew up this first no-confidence vote against a Bonn chancellor in German postwar history Monday night only a few hours after their sweeping victory in weekend elections in the key state of Baden-Wuerttemberg.

Under the West German constitution 48 hours must elapse before the crucial vote is taken — in this instance on Thursday. Should it succeed, in toppling Brandt's liberal coalition, which has ruled since October, 1969, it will also frustrate his two pacts of reconciliation with the Soviet Union and Poland.

The pacts, which are due to come before the Bundestag (lower house) for ratification next week, have met with bitter opposition in parliament on the grounds that they effectively seal the partition of Germany.

The 59-year-old chancellor, who was warded the Nobel Peace Prize just four months ago for his efforts at reconciliation with Eastern Europe, said Monday night on television he awaited the vote "with composure."

Greenpeace Skipper—Smuggler

AUKLAND, New Zealand (UPI) — Vancouver yachtsman David McTaggart was released from jail today in time to sail his 38-foot ketch Vega, renamed Greenpeace III, for Mururoa atoll to protest against the planned French nuclear tests there.

McTaggart was convicted in an Aukland court this week of smuggling 127 watches worth $7,200 from Fiji into New Zealand in his yacht.

His fine of $960 was paid and he was released from custody in time to attend a news conference here today when Ben Metcalfe, chairman of the Canadian-based International Greenpeace Foundation, handed over the standards from two previous Greenpeace boats.

Soviet Assisted

CAIRO (UPI) — President Anwar Sadat has acknowledged for the first time that Egypt has granted facilities to the Soviet fleet in the Mediterranean and in a speech released today disclosed he is receiving arms from the West.

Hire PM? Not Even as Baggage Man!

PWA general manager W. R. Harris made that clear today.

"No, we wouldn't hire him, unless he got a haircut," Harris told the Times.

He was commenting on B.C. Civil Liberties Association plans to stage a satirical "baggage handling ceremony" at noon Thursday in front of the Vancouver PWA office.

The idea is to spoof PWA regulations that require its male employees to keep their hair above the back of the neck and their sideburns above the ear lobe.

Informed this ceremony was going to happen, Harris laughed and said: "I think that it's beautiful."

The PWA has become a target of the association because of a complaint from a baggage handler last year.

Harris explained that he was a student hired for the summer and when he was told to cut his hair if he wanted to keep the job, he complied.

The association said PWA forbids long hair because it may instil "a sense of apprehension" in passengers, and quoted letters from Harris saying so.

Harris said today the rule applies to all male employees, from pilots down, who are "in the public eye." He added that it was strictly a matter of neatness.

Asked whether he thought all men with long hair were not neat, he replied: "Not necessarily. I've seen some that were neat and some that were terrible."

The association pamphlet adds that, besides having long hair, Trudeau wouldn't qualify for PWA employ because "he's been known to drink beer in public" and "he refuses to wear red bloomers."

In its protest Thursday against such discrimination, the association invites "honest men who are proud of the length of their sideburns or the hair on their chin or over their collar" to show up and bring their own baggage.

Apollo 16 Returns With Treasures

Times News Services

HOUSTON — Apollo 16's astronauts escaped the dominance of the moon's gravity today and sped toward earth with a treasury of rocks that scientists think may include long-sought pieces of the primitive lunar crust.

John Young, Thomas Mattingly and Charles Duke showed the bright, grey-white moon receding behind them during an early morning impromptu telecast. They were reported on target for a splashdown in the Pacific Ocean Thursday afternoon.

Young and Duke walked on the moon, but today was Mattingly's day. His schedule called for an hour-long spacewalk to retrieve 6,500 feet of film from two mapping cameras in the spaceship's moon observatory.

A crucial engine burn Monday night thrust the astronauts out of lunar orbit at 6:14 p.m. PST and on course for earth, 240,000 miles away. The command ship is due to splash down in the South Pacific near Christmas Island.

Doubleheader U.S. Primary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts vote today in doubleheader presidential primary elections, with senators Hubert Humphrey and George McGovern forecasting victories. Senator Edmund Muskie is the underdog in both elections.

Brandt Faces Crucial Vote

BONN (Reuter) — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt is facing a no-confidence vote in 48 hours which could end his 2½ years in power, but he is confident he can survive.

Equally confident of toppling him are the opposition Christian Democrats. They drew up this first no-confidence vote against a Bonn chancellor in German postwar history Monday night only a few hours after their sweeping victory in weekend elections in the key state of Baden-Wuerttemberg.

Under the West German constitution 48 hours must elapse before the crucial vote is taken — in this instance on Thursday. Should it succeed in toppling Brandt's liberal coalition, which has ruled since October, 1969, it will also frustrate his two pacts of reconciliation with the Soviet Union and Poland.

The pacts, which are due to come before the Bundestag (lower house) for ratification next week, have met with bitter opposition in parliament on the grounds that they effectively seal the partition of Germany.

The 59-year-old chancellor, who was warded the Nobel Peace Prize just four months ago for his efforts at reconciliation with Eastern Europe, said Monday night on television he awaited the vote "with composure."

Greenpeace Skipper Smuggler

AUKLAND, New Zealand (UPI) — Vancouver yachtsman David McTaggart was released from jail today in time to sail his 38-foot ketch Vega, renamed Greenpeace III, for Mururoa atoll to protest against the planned French nuclear tests there.

McTaggart was convicted in an Aukland court this week of smuggling 127 watches worth $7,200 from Fiji into New Zealand in his yacht.

His fine of $960 was paid and he was released from custody in time to attend a news conference here today when Ben Metcalfe, chairman of the Canadian-based International Greenpeace Foundation, handed over the standards from two previous Greenpeace boats.

Soviet Assisted

CAIRO (UPI) — President Anwar Sadat has acknowledged for the first time that Egypt has granted facilities to the Soviet fleet in the Mediterranean and in a speech released today disclosed he is receiving arms from the West.

Hire PM? Not Even as Baggage Man!

PWA general manager W. R. Harris made that clear today.

"No, we wouldn't hire him, unless he got a haircut," Harris told the Times.

He was commenting on B.C. Civil Liberties Association plans to stage a satirical "baggage handling ceremony" at noon Thursday in front of the Vancouver PWA office.

The idea is to spoof PWA regulations that require its male employees to keep their hair above the back of the neck and their sideburns above the ear lobe.

Informed this ceremony was going to happen, Harris laughed and said: "I think that it's beautiful."

The PWA has become a target of the association because of a complaint from a baggage handler last year.

Harris explained that he was a student hired for the summer and when he was told to cut his hair if he wanted to keep the job, he complied.

The association said PWA forbids long hair because it may instil "a sense of apprehension" in passengers, and quoted letters from Harris saying so.

Harris said today the rule applies to all male employees, from pilots down, who are "in the public eye." He added that it was strictly a matter of neatness.

Asked whether he thought all men with long hair were not neat, he replied: "Not necessarily. I've seen some that were neat and some that were terrible."

The association pamphlet adds that, besides having long hair, Trudeau wouldn't qualify for PWA employ because "he's been known to drink beer in public" and "he refuses to wear red bloomers."

In its protest Thursday against such discrimination, the association invites "honest men who are proud of the length of their sideburns or the hair on their chin or over their collar" to show up and bring their own baggage.

$165,000 for the Young

17 Groups (Including Peppy's Parksters) To Receive Summer Cash

The federal government is subsidizing the youth of Greater Victoria this summer to the tune of more than $165,000.

The government's Opportunities For Youth program has announced grants to 17 Greater Victoria groups of young people. The grants will pay wages and buy equipment for various projects to last through this summer.

Today's announcement is only part of Ottawa's helping hand to the young people. More grants are expected soon.

In total, about 3,000 projects will be financed across the country by the government, from a pool of 19,000 applications. About 29,000 young Canadians will be employed under the program, using $34 million of the federal money.

The Opportunities For Youth program is part of a wider government scheme to employ young people through the summer. About $85 million has been put aside altogether for this purpose, involving the Secretary of State, the Treasury Board, the Public Service Commission, and the departments of manpower and immigration, national health and welfare and national defence.

The grants announced so far:

—$11,590 to the Cool-Aid farm project in Saanich.

—$9,265 for production of a puppetry program to travel around the lower Island.

—$8,680 for a marketplace for local artists and craftsmen.

—$8,261 for an activity program for disadvantaged children between the ages of 7 and 12.

—$17,500 to the Bastion summer youth theatre, employing 14 youths in a theatrical project in the capital region.

—$13,970 to a community action theatre group, intended to provide information about poverty in dramatic presentations to community groups.

—$12,340 to a Victoria women's project providing a drop-in centre. Research will be done into health, social and cultural problems of women.

—$8,130 for an archaeological excavation at Esquimalt Lagoon, designed to assist the provincial museum in its study of the cultural history of Victoria.

—$10,075 to Victoria Self-Help, a drop-in centre for former mental patients seeking a meaningful role in the community.

—$5,553 to Peppy's Parksters, a group of youths presenting weekly puppet shows at 10 playgrounds in the city, children participating.

—$5,790 for a group using drama sessions as a therapeutic technique with handicapped children. Viceo tapes and films will be made.

—$6,980 for a free odd-job service for people unable to do the work themselves, called Man About the House.

—$9,070 for arts and crafts instruction in the James Bay community scout hall and day camp trips for children 8-15 years.

—$9,645 for research into community television in Greater Victoria.

—$9,900 for a project acquainting low and fixed income groups with rehabilitative resources available, including community home visits.

Grants to other Opportunities For Youth projects on Vancouver Island and coastal areas total more than $280,000, including the largest of all those listed so far — $21,600 to a group to 15 people doing salvage archaeology in Prince Rupert harbor.

Ottawa Blamed For 'Foul-Up' In Job Scheme

A "fouled-up" federal government press release is causing Canada Manpower officials headaches for students looking for summer jobs.

The press release was circulated at a press conference Thursday night in the Bay Street Armory.

In it, it said 130 students would be employed at CFB Esquimalt this summer, beginning May 1.

The rush was on.

High school principals, anxious to help their students, put the news over intercoms.

Eager students and their parents hurried to the Canada Manpower office, only to be told the jobs were filled weeks ago.

What went wrong?

A check with Canada Manpower discloses that the hot news from Ottawa was given to the local press three weeks after the scheme was put into operation.

An official said today, "They've got it fouled up, there's no quota left, the jobs were taken by university students some time ago."

He said that both high school students and their parents have been "complaining bitterly" when told the release was no longer valid.

He added ,"We run into this all the time."

Eric Fleming, Manpower representative on the University of Victoria campus, confirmed that government officials moved faster than their publicity men.

"Things come out from Ottawa under general direction but they also come over telex. We got authority three weeks ago and went into high gear immediately. We've sent more than 130 students for consideration."

Tom Crone, chief of civilian personnal at the base, agreed that all jobs were being filled through the campus office.

ONE WOMAN WAS HURT and damage was estimated at $15,000 in a fire which burned out the second floor of a shops-and-apartment building at 741-745 Goldstream today. The building is across the street from the Langford Fire Hall, and 28 volunteers answered the call at 6:45 a.m. Mrs. Arnold Goudie, who suffered cut hands and arms when she leaped through a window in her upstairs suite, was treated and released from hospital. BIDS THURSDAY ON SCHOOL PROJECTS

Tenders will be opened Thursday at the offices of the Greater Victoria school board for two school building projects.

One is to build a new science laboratory and make alterations to the home economics area of Central junior high.

The other is modernization of science facilities, upgrading of lighting and fire safety and alteration of classrooms to create an open area at S. J. Willis junior high.

Soft Drink Price Unchanged Here

An increase in the price of soft drinks Monday on the mainland and, apparently, through most of the province hasn't yet been seen in Greater Victoria.

But that pleasant situation may not last for long.

The hike, of one cent per bottle on six-packs was taken by the major soft drink companies and was attributed to rising costs. Ted Harrison, general manager of Wometco Ltd. in Vancouver, bottlers of five major brands, said "The prices of sugar, bottles, trucks—everything we use—have gone up" since the last increase, in 1970.

Locally, Crystal Springs Beverages manager Barry Brinkworth said his company hasn't yet looked into the possibility of an increase, but he confirmed rising costs. "A lot of our costs have soared, sugar is up about $4 a bag in the past year."

On the basis of that, he said, it would not be unreasonable to anticipate an increase in retail price here.

The other Victoria bottlers, Goodwill Bottling Ltd., withheld comment. Manager Bill Sherwood said simply he had nothing to say on the hike.

Goodwill bottles Coca-Cola, Sprite, Fanta, Tab and Fresca.

There are two warehouses in Victoria handling soft drinks bottled on the mainland, Canada Dry and Victoria Beverages. But so far neither has received instructions about a price increase. So for the present, at least, the old prices hold.

BAIL, DRUG SCENE ON CHIEFS' AGENDA

Recent bail reforms, drug abuse, restricted and prohibited weapons and provincial police cars will be high on the agenda May 3 and 4 when approximately 40 police chiefs gather here for a conference of the Western Chief Constables' Association.

The conference will include representatives from the four western provinces and such specialized forces as railway police and harbors board police.

Victoria's Chief Jack Gregory, chairman of the conference, said today all sessions will be closed to the press.

"It's just that a closed session lends itself to a freer expression of thought," he explained.

But following the sessions, he said, delegates will be entirely free to speak with reporters, and "are certainly under no restrictions" concerning publicity.

He said he will, as chairman of the session, be willing to meet with reporters whenever possible during the meet.

Ask the Times

Monday Ask the Times quoted "our resident financial analyst" as saying sweepstakes winnings under new federal tax legislation are taxable.

Today "Our resident financial analyst" is on the end of a broom in the back shop.

And in fact, sweepstakes winnings remain non-taxable. On Page 1 of an information book published by the Department of National Revenue following passage of the new legislation, it states that "Gains from 'windfalls' such as sweepstakes, gambling and other games of chance are not subject to tax."

Builder Claims Loss From Zoning Switch

Victoria contractor Hans Hartwig says he paid more than he would have done for a valuable piece of downtown property — because city council failed to give sufficient public warning that it was changing its zoning bylaw.

In a letter to council, Hartwig says he met with the president of Avis Rent A Car in Vancouver March 4 and bought the Avis-owned site in downtown Victoria, at the corner of Douglas and Humboldt.

The purchase price was based on the existing bylaw at that time, which allowed development of 94,000 square feet on the property.

'FLABBERGASTED'

Hartwig says from the meeting he went to Toronto and then for a three-week holiday. On his return he was "flabbergasted" to be told council had changed the bylaw allowing development of only 39,000 square feet.

In the letter he states he agrees with council's reasoning that over-development is harmful to the appearance of the city and undesirable.

But he argues that council should have given at least a few months' warning of the impending change to the zoning bylaw, "to avoid financial losses for citizens that either own or intend to purchase or develop downtown property."

City council adopted its new zoning bylaw limiting the size and height of new buildings in down-town Victoria on March 27.

The bylaw limits absolute height of a building to 140 feet or 14 storeys. The bulk of new buildings is limited to a height to floor-space ratio of three to one, and heights at the property line are limited to 30 feet.

City planner Geoff Greenhalgh said today the procedure for dealing with zoning bylaw changes is more explicit and longer than for any other bylaw amendment.

The procedure laid down by provincial statute includes requirements for both newspaper advertising of the proposed changes and a public hearing, he said.

A hint of impending moves to limit the size of new downtown construction was given by Mayor Peter Pollen early this year in his inaugural speech." Aldermen approved preparation of the zoning bylaw amendment last February.

Is That How You Learned It in Shool?

ON A SUMMER DAY MY love and I happened to be refueling our car at a service station a few miles south of Nanaimo when a travel van with Maryland plates pulled in on the other side of the pump island.

"How far are we from Nanyamo?" the driver asked.

The garageman told him, not bothering to correct the mispronunciation.

"That's the seventh today," he said to us later, "and there'll be another bunch tomorrow. You get used to it. Anyway, you never can tell how people will react if you put them right."

Quite true. As a confirmed mispronouncer, I have more than once been considerably jarred to learn that my version of a word can fetch snickers from the better-informed.

That American from Maryland wouldn't dream of calling his state's famed river the POTomac. But I'd still be bearing down hard on the first syliable if my wife hadn't finally set me straight.

"It's PotOmac," she imformed me, "with the emphasis on the second 'O'."

Place names can be rough on the stranger. Even in Canada East, which really should know better I've often heard one of our bread-basket provinces referred to as SasKATCHOO-on.

For me, though, and also for my wife, our native tongue has pitfalls of another sort.

As children, we were both plunging readers who would whip through any book we could get our hands on. Correct pronunciation was the least of our concerns. We were reading for interest, and any word that created a problem could get out of our way or be trampled.

The result was that between haste to absorb, and the trickiness of the English language, each of us grew up with a set of stubborn misconceptions tagging determinedly along.

Some of these we shared. Take 'misled,' for instance: an easy, two-syliable word that nobody should go wrong on. You split it down the middle and place equal weight on each half.

But we didn't know that, and since neither was in a position to untangle the other, we persisted in error until one of those people who are everlastingly setting others straight undertook to correct us.

Today, even though made aware that 'misled' shouldn't be pronounced 'myzeld,' we secretly prefer this unorthodox version.

In addition to such mutual manglings, we have our individual stumbling blocks.

I know that if Win says 'character,' she can be expected to lead off properly by sounding the first two letters as 'K,. I'm also aware, because she once nearly split me by admitting the foible, that in her mind the 'ch' is still pronounced as in 'charm.'

Merriment over others' linguistic weaknesses can be dangerous, however, especially for someone who is entirely capable of going astray with quay and chasm. Luckily for me, those weasel words rarely turn up in conversation.

Such difficulties could be avoided by consulting any good dictionary when in doubt as to how a word should be spoken as well as spelled.

But that takes time, and dictionaries have a way of not being at hand when needed. I expect that most of us who occasionally trip up when we apply our tongues to certain words will continue to do so until the pluggers for Basic English have their way.

After that, no bother; spelling will be simpler, and words will be spoken as spelled.

Meanwhile, if you have an urge to soften the 'l' and sound the 's' in 'island,' take comfort. You are not alone.

Which brings us to the classic putdown administered by a fellow who was pounced on because he insisted on pronouncing 'schedule' as 'skedule' rather than 'shedule'.

"Interesting," he said mildly to the heckler. "Is that how you learned it in shool?"

Talk on Media Closed to Media

Jim Hume, secretary to the Capital Regional District Board and the board's information officer, gave a lunchtime talk today on the "State of the media in Victoria."

The talk, to members of the Victoria Electric Club, was closed to media representatives.

Night Owl Gizmo Daytime Dodo

Take heart, all you drivers who sit there fuming day after day, waiting for the green which never seems to come at the Douglas-Hillside-Government lights.

Help may be on the way.

Victoria traffic engineer Dave Campbell said Monday the gizmo which operates the lights at the busy junction — it's called a Traffic-Actuated Volume Density Controller — is obsolete and his department hopes to replace it next year with more efficient equipment.

Campbell, who was conducting a seminar on Victoria's traffic control system for municipal officials from across Canada, said the present controller is at least 12 years old.

It reacts to traffic patterns as they develop, he said, but when it is working to capacity — as it is in the morning and evening rush periods — it switches to fixed time operation.

This means each lane has a fixed, equal time for traffic movement. It also means that if the hapless driver strikes an amber he has a full two and a half minutes to wait for the cycle to work through.

"It's only in off-peak hours that you see this equipment working properly," Campbell said. "It works beautifully at 2 a.m."

When Victoria planning committee chairman Mike Young asked why the equipment was still used, Campbell said there would be a proposal in next year's budget to buy more efficient equipment.

With the new equipment, if a gap of a few seconds developed between vehicles in a lane moving on green, the lights would be switched automatically to another lane, he explained.
